Brian Viner's Cable Stars

Star power

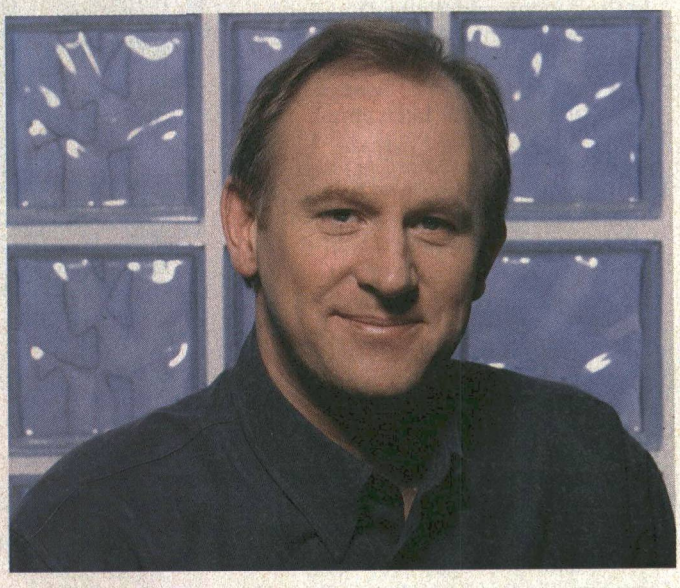
Back in 1990, Julia Roberts was paid $300,000 for her performance in Pretty Woman. As at least one film encyclopedia notes, it would seem unlikely that an actress could become America's sweetheart by playing a hooker, but that is what Roberts did with Pretty Woman. More or less overnight, she became a superstar. And for last year's Erin Brockovich she received $20m – a record for a film actress. So the 33-year-old Atlantan is entitled to look back on the last ten years with considerable satisfaction, if only at the increase in her earning power. And she certainly has no reason to regret turning down parts in hit films such as the Oscar-laden Shakespeare in Love.

On screen and off she has done almost exactly the right things to boost her career, or at any rate her fame – dating Daniel Day-Lewis, Liam Neeson and Friends star Matthew Perry, breaking off her engagement to Kiefer Sutherland, divorcing country star Lyle Lovett. Since 1998 she has been with the actor Benjamin Bratt – the best kisser she has ever encountered, she says loyally.

It is not altogether surprising that Julia Roberts (who was called Julie all through high school) turned out to be an actress. Her parents once ran an acting school in Atlanta. Her brother Eric – who is 11 years older and from whom she is now estranged, to the undying fascination of the tabloid press – went into the movies, too. He is no slouch, either, with an Oscar nomination under his belt for the 1986 thriller Runaway Train. But there's only one superstar in the family. Hence the estrangement? Who knows? Whatever, Roberts does seem to have retained a streak of humility, and for a Hollywood star she is refreshingly self-deprecating. 'I enjoy hats,' she once said. 'And when one has filthy hair, that is a good accessory.'

Of the many characters she has portrayed, she claims to have enjoyed playing Erin Brockovich the most. 'She was the most challenging, the most well-rounded,' she says, and she's not kidding about the well-rounded bit. How did she develop that cleavage? 'It doesn't involve pumps or levers or anything,' she says. 'Just a little good old-fashioned know-how.' Did she not find herself a bit top-heavy? 'Well, there's certainly a balance issue between high heels and big breasts.'

Erin Brokovich, Front Row, from Monday 9th



All roles, great and small

Peter Davison enjoyed playing moral weakling David Braithwaite in the drama At Home with the Braithwaites. In the course of a distinguished acting career he has had precious few opportunities to play badly behaved characters – with the dishonourable exception, he proudly points out, of a murderer in an episode of Miss Marple. 'So it was nice to play a fuller character,' he says. And has he started buying Lottery tickets? After all, his screen wife, played by Amanda Redman, scooped £38m. 'I've never bought one,' he says flatly. 'I don't like it. I think it's a tax on the less well-off.'

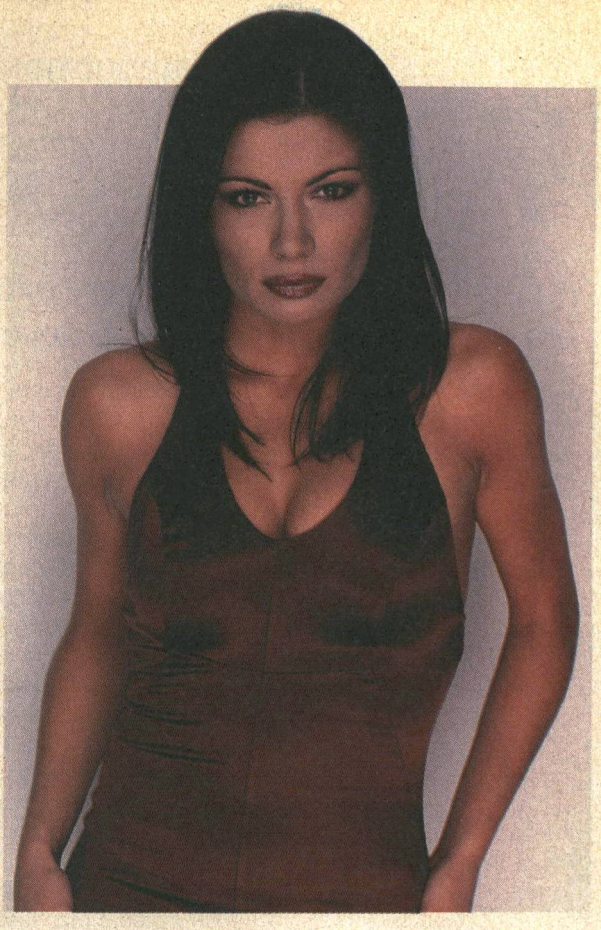
Davison turns 50 this month, but refuses to agonise about it. 'I'm not a great party-thrower but I might even have a party,' he muses. 'When I was younger I used to think that in the year 2000 I would be 49 and my life would be more or less over,' he says. 'But now I'm quite happy about getting older.'

All the same, it is hard to think of young Tristan Farnon, irreverent kid brother of Robert Hardy's Siegfried in All Creatures Great and Small, at 50. Davison was catapulted into the limelight by the veterinary drama series. 'I remember the first episode getting a terrible review from a vet on the Radio 4 programme Kaleidoscope,' he groans. 'He said, "Why on Earth would the BBC think anyone might be interested in this?" And we were all very depressed. But after five episodes vicars were cancelling church services because their congregations were staying at home to watch it. We peaked at 21 million viewers and regularly got 18 million. And for me it was a great novelty and rather nice to be recognised in the street.'

In 1982, Davison's fame grew further when he became the fifth Dr Who. In contrast with David Braithwaite, whose character was so clearly defined, he never knew quite what sort of character he was meant to be as Dr Who, he says. 'All I knew was that I had to save the universe every week and run down lots of corridors,' he observes. Which sums up Dr Who rather nicely.

At Home with the Braithwaites, ITV2, Thursdays from 12th, 10.00pm

A Dream job

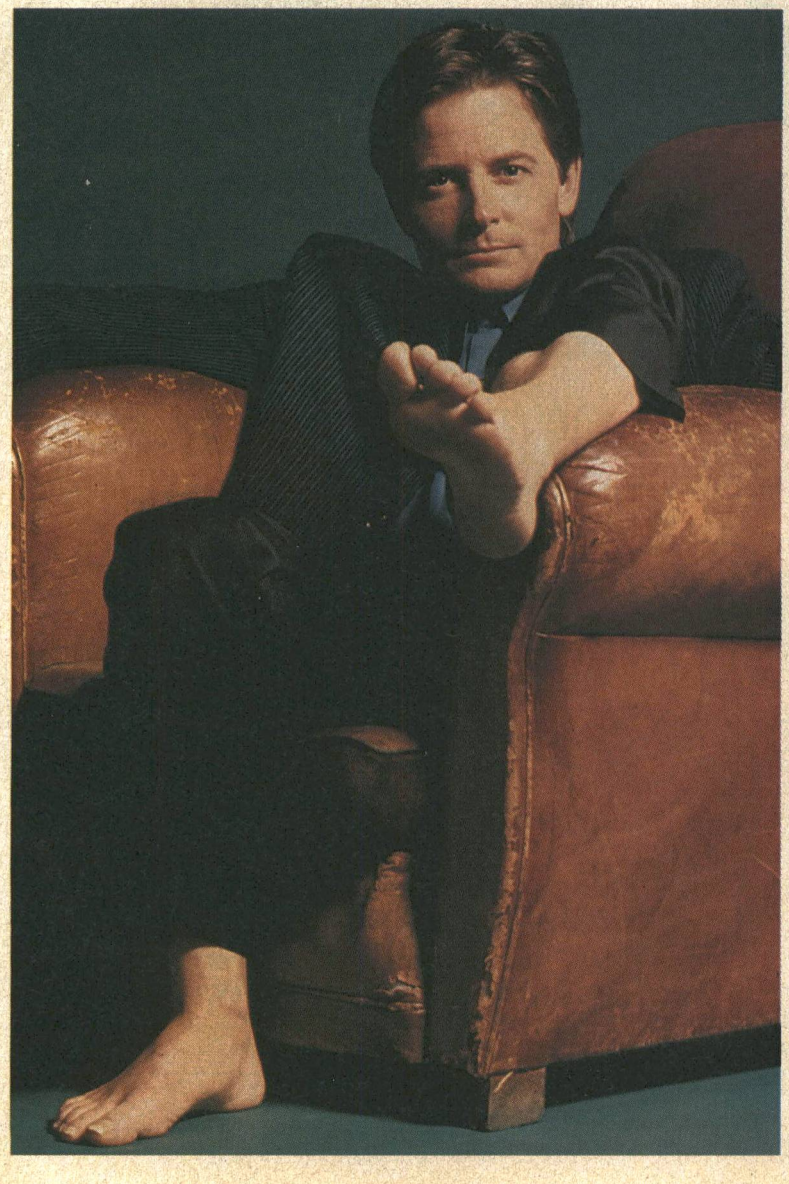


Even by soap opera standards, Lynda Block has had a roller-coaster ride over the past few years. The chairwoman of Harchester United in Sky One's Dream Team has survived failed marriages, failed affairs and financial crises. She has been stitched up by her husband, her lover and her sister, who tried to get her committed to a mental asylum. She has suffered a miscarriage. Oh, and she has been shot in the head. Mercifully, life has been kinder to her alter ego, 28-year-old actress Alison King. When still at drama school King landed a small but important part in Brookside, as a bit on the side for Peter the crimper. 'I came back with him from Mauritius to make Lindsey Corkhill jealous,' she recalls. 'I had to give him a snog and she gave me a slap.'

King should have learned that soap life can be fraught with danger. Undeterred, she auditioned for the part of a canteen assistant in Dream Team, only to land the more desirable role of Lynda Block. At least it seemed more desirable. 'But when I read the script, I thought, "This isn't right for me." She was like Dorien from Birds of a Feather. She's changed a bit since then, thank goodness.'

King – a Liverpool fan in real life – has drawn inspiration for Lynda from Karren Brady, the managing director of Birmingham City. Brady played a cameo role in the second series and King was impressed. 'She's a tough character.' But Lynda is more vulnerable than Brady, and King still yearns to play 'a real toughie in a gritty drama, a Lynda La Plante series, or The Vice'. Until then she will continue to wrestle with the affairs of Harchester United – hoping not to be shot in the head again, and that Harchester don't draw Liverpool in the cup.

Dream Team season finale, Sky One, Sunday 15th, 7.00pm



Fox is not in a spin

Michael J Fox has won friends and influenced people in the two years since he announced to the world that he was suffering from Parkinson's disease. Despite undergoing brain surgery to control tremors that, he once joked, at their worst enabled him 'to mix a margarita in five seconds', and despite having to give up his award-winning sitcom Spin City, he has refused to play the victim. He has felt detached from the media coverage of his illness. 'The breathlessness of it, and the tragedy of it, and the drama of it, and the melodrama of it, certainly didn't apply to me,' he told interviewer Barbara Walters shortly after going public in December 1998. He has been determined not to add 'why me?' syndrome to his catalogue of health problems. In fact, he considers himself lucky. 'There's no doubt I'm charmed. I'm not crying "what a tragedy", because it's not. It's a reality, a fact.'

The Canadian actor noticed early symptoms of his disease in 1991, shortly after completing the Back to the Future trilogy which turned him into an international star. For the first few years, medication kept the condition under control, but there were some hairy moments, like the time he was invited onto David Letterman's show and paced up and down beforehand praying for his shaking to stop. Since his coming-out interview in People magazine, Fox – who turns 40 in June – has lobbied for an increase in funding for research into Parkinson's. Indeed, that is largely why he quit Spin City, not to concentrate on his own predicament but to raise awareness. 'I can expect in my 40s to face challenges most wouldn't expect until their 70s or 80s, if ever,' he told the Senate. 'But with your help, if we do everything we can to eradicate this disease, in my 50s I'll be dancing at my children's weddings.'

A new Discovery documentary explores the ancient practice of mummification as never before

MUMMIES take over Discovery next month when the monster movie favourite will be unwrapped in a series of documentaries.

Part of the mummy mania includes the UK premiere of Ultimate Guide: Mummies, a documentary exploring mummification that touches on controversial issues and features exclusive footage.

Louise Bourner, researcher and assistant producer on the programme, explains how Ultimate Guide tries to shed new light on such a well-covered subject: 'We were interested in the question of why people are mummified – we're so familiar with mummification, but why is it done, and how?

'With Egyptian mummies, we know a lot because of the hieroglyphics they used, but with the South American mummies it's harder, as they were a pre-literate society,' she explains.

'The Peruvian mummies do have amazingly well preserved hair, though. We sent samples to a forensic science specialist in America who can tell an enormous amount from a centuries-old strand of hair.'

The most intriguing aspect of the programme, however, is the research being done with mummification today.

'In the US, scientists mummified a man just six years ago,' Bourner reveals. 'He donated his body to science to test the principles of mummification. The scientists tried to follow the procedure authentically and even commissioned people to make replicas of the ancient Egyptian tools used for removing internal organs. We have exclusive footage of that. It was a fairly controversial experiment – the body was wrapped up, and they even performed prayers and drew the spiritual markings on the bandages. They have since unwrapped him and he's been preserved perfectly, so far.'

Other exclusive footage includes the moving story of an Egyptian double baby's coffin which dates from the 2nd century AD.

'It's the only double coffin in the world and, in Ultimate Guide, it's the first time the bodies of these babies have been filmed.'

The enduring mystery of the double coffin is that one of the babies was wrapped, the other unwrapped.

'There are no hieroglyphics or inscriptions, so it's a real mystery,' Bourner says. 'Seeing two babies like that really is moving, whereas a lot of the time with historic subjects like mummification, things get very dehumanised.

'That's one of the things that makes [this] different to a lot of documentaries – the beautiful mix of hard forensic science and mystery.'

Follow the adventures of Sheep (pictured) as he arrives in the scary world of the Big City having left the adoring Farmer John while on the run from the diabolical General Specific. No jokes about mint sauce, please. This little sheep is far too cute!

● Believe it or not, Jerry Springer, Elton John, Mel Gibson, Stephen Hawking and Britney Spears share something in common. They have all, at one time or another, received the ultimate acknowledgement of celebrity status by appearing in The Simpsons as themselves. Not to be outdone, American super-group *NSYNC have got in on the act in an episode called New Kids on the Blecck, where friends Bart, Milhouse, Nelson and Ralph create their own boyband. You can see the results on Sky One in May!

● Disney's 36th animated movie, Mulan, will be premiering on Disney Channel this summer. Transforming ancient Chinese legend into spell-binding action, the film features the vocal talents of Eddie (The Nutty Professor) Murphy and 1970s pin-up warbler Donny Osmond. Stepping in for her father, young Mulan goes into battle against the Hun army disguised as a soldier, and this captivating tale follows our courageous heroine as she fights for her family's honour and her own pride.

Winton wonderland

Fun-loving TV personality Dale Winton tells Brian Viner why he's chuffed to be chosen as the host of this year's exciting Cable Guide Awards

WITH the exceptions of Lord Sainsbury and Dale Winton, it is hard to think of anyone who has found fame and fortune in the aisles of a supermarket. And so ubiquitous does Dale now seem on television, that it is similarly hard to believe we have only known him since the daytime gameshow Supermarket Sweep propelled him to stardom in the mid-1990s. My edition of the Guinness Television Encyclopedia, published in 1995, leaps from Bernie Winters to Norman Wisdom. No sign whatsoever of Dale. Yet he now deserves at least a page to himself.

Having first met him before he was encumbered by fame, I can testify that it has not changed him one whit. He is the same man now as he was then (except that these days he drives home to his lovely house near London's Regent's Park in a swish Jaguar XKR) and the same off screen as on – in other words warm, effusive and marvellously camp. I ask him whether he is tiring of fame, if not fortune? 'I don't want it to stop just yet,' he says. 'I say to my agent, "Just another couple of years of this would be nice." You have to remember, darling, that most people start much earlier. I was 37, 38, when I got Sweep. I'll be 46 later this year.'

On the other hand, Dale was born into showbiz. He was named after Dale Robertson, an American actor, big on TV in the 1950s, who later surfaced in mega soap Dynasty. And his mother was blonde starlet Sheree Winton, who had a bit part in A Hard Day's Night and nearly became Purdey in The New Avengers. Mother and son were very close, but Sheree suffered from depression and fatally overdosed on barbiturates when Dale was 21. A few months later he became engaged to a girl his mother had liked. The engagement didn't last, fuelling the assumption that Dale is gay.

Beguilingly, he has never declared which way he swings, sexually. 'I haven't had a relationship now for three or four years, darling,' he tells me. 'I think I'm ready for one now. I'm certainly not married to my work. I definitely work to live, I don't live to work. Not many of my closest friends are in the business.' As for those who are, Dale names Barbara Windsor, Cilla Black, Davina McCall, Lisa Tarbuck and Martine McCutcheon. 'All girls. Weird, isn't it?'

Not really. He has always had a devoted female following, even in the days when he was 'just' a local radio DJ. He spent eight years on Radio Trent, then moved to Beacon Radio in Wolverhampton. But his weight ballooned to 18 stone (he is now a fragile 13 stone, with suits for thin days and suits for fat days), so something must have been awry. Eventually he decided to jack in local radio, lose weight, and seek his fortune in London. Along came Supermarket Sweep, whereupon the floodgates opened and all sorts of exciting offers poured in, to present Pets Win

> 'I don't want it to stop just yet. I say to my agent, "Just another couple of years of this would be nice"'

Mingle with the stars

Some of the famous faces set to be at the Awards – the biggest yet!

Prizes, the National Lottery, and of course the 2001 Cable Guide Awards.

He is particularly pleased to be presenting the Cable Guide Awards, he adds, because he watches so much Cable telly. 'I'm not ritualistic about the five terrestrial channels, not at all,' he says. 'In fact I've just been watching an old Hylda Baker sitcom on Granada Plus, so how sad am I? I watch Sally Jessy Raphael every morning, and Jenny Jones, and Jerry Springer. I would love to do a Jerry Springer-type show. My favourite Jerry Springers are the ones with the cheaters. They're the best. I love the cheaters. I know it's rubbish but I love it. And I adore Frasier. I watch it every night on Paramount, or tape it if I'm going out.'

As for Dale's own TV career, it continues to go swimmingly, and he has a new BBC gameshow in the pipeline called Win Your Life Back – in which contestants are stripped of life's necessities, such as clothes, cars and fridges, then have to win them back. 'And they get me as a kind of joker, shopping or baby-sitting for them once a week,' he says. It sounds intriguing. But doubtless it will be sneered at by the critics, some of whom already complain that we see too much Dale. Does the sniping bother him? 'Not really, darling. Carol Vorderman gets it too. But I'm on less than people realize.'

When he is not working, I wonder whether he ever contemplates writing his autobiography? 'It's on hold,' he says. 'My agent thinks it's a very good idea, but if I'm going to do it the story has to be totally honest. I'd have to write about the lows as well as the highs, and I'm not quite ready for that.'

The Crowe Road

What attracted Russell Crowe to the role of Maximus in Ancient Rome epic Gladiator was a complexity that's often lacking in modern action heroes. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

THE MAKERS of Gladiator promised that a hero would rise, and they certainly lived up to that with the character of Maximus Decimus Meridius, who propelled the Roman Empire epic to become one of Hollywood's top-grossing movies of last year.

In the process they made Australian actor Russell Crowe a genuine Hollywood star, and, at the time of going to press, earned him his second Best Actor Oscar nomination, one of a whopping 12 for which the film was in contention.

But Crowe sees Maximus differently to the action heroes played in recent times by the likes of Schwarzenegger and Stallone.

'My point of view about that type of action hero is that it leaves me cold,' says 37-year-old Crowe, whose previous Hollywood credits include LA Confidential and The Insider (for which he was awarded his first Best Actor nod).

'You talk to any soldier, any person who actually does this sort of thing for a living, and in truth the one thing that is never reflected in stories told about soldiers is fear. I mean, Stallone standing there with a big old knife and he's not affected by any of the danger that's in front of him – that is patent bull. A good soldier is only a man who can control his fear a little longer than the next bloke.'

Crowe continues: 'I don't see Maximus as a hero. We seem to have a celebrity-based media, so perhaps our heroes are not chosen for the same depth of reasons that they might have been in different times. You've got to remember where he comes from. Maximus is a soldier, but not in our times of objectivity and distance with a bullet. He gets very up close and cleaves people with a two-foot sword, so I think you've got to keep his base brutality in mind when you think of his personality as a whole.'

Budgeted at $100m and directed by Briton Ridley Scott (Thelma & Louise, Hannibal), Gladiator was filmed in England, Malta, Morocco, Italy and America. As well as Crowe, the international cast features American Joaquin Phoenix, brother of the late River Phoenix, as Commodus, Irishman Richard Harris (Emperor Marcus Aurelius) and Brits David Hemmings (Cassius), Derek Jacobi (Gracchus) and the late Oliver Reed (Proximo).

Maximus is the all-conquering general of the Roman army, whom the ageing Marcus Aurelius appoints as his successor. This angers Aurelius's son, Commodus, who kills his father and orders the death of Maximus. But Maximus flees back to his home in Spain, arriving just in time to find his farm in ruins and his wife and son dead at the hands of Commodus. Hiding his identity as a slave and gladiator, Maximus eventually returns to Rome to exact his revenge.

Crowe had to start work on Gladiator almost immediately after finishing The Insider, in which he was barely recognisable as real-life tobacco industry whistle-blower Jeffrey Wigand, and for which he packed on more than 40lbs.

Maximus obviously called for a different physical shape, so Crowe was required to shed the extra weight and get himself buffed up to be more than just convincing in the movie's spectacular fight scenes.

'For part of the time there was a personal trainer on the gig, but he ended up helping Ridley with his knee problem from tennis,' Crowe says. 'I find it very difficult to work out with someone unless they are completely willing to get involved in my schedule.'

'Maximus is a soldier, but not in our times of objectivity and distance with a bullet. He gets very up close and cleaves people'

He also had to learn to expertly wield a sword. 'I come from Australia and I've attended a lot of barbecues in my time, so it was really just an extension of that, mate – just a slightly larger steak knife,' he quips. 'I'd done a little fencing before, but there was an English sword master on the film who patiently explained to me that fencing hadn't been invented in 185 AD, so I had to drop all that.

'But I like props. Whether it's a cowboy gun in [spaghetti Western spoof] The Quick and The Dead or a shotgun in LA Confidential, being accustomed to the weapon and expert with it is something that's of great importance whether you're a military man, no matter what the time period, or a policeman or whatever. But I don't feel any sense of empowerment or anything like that. It's just another prop.'

Despite filming under difficult conditions, Crowe and director Scott established a good working relationship. 'He's a straight shooter and so am I,' Crowe says. 'We get on very well, even when we disagree.'

FX men at work

MOVIE EFFECTS designers are often called upon to conjure up future worlds in sci-fi epics. But Gladiator posed a different type of challenge for visual effects supervisor Tim Burke and his crew at the London-based Mill Film: they were hired to recreate history, to bring Ancient Rome back to life. In so doing, they set a new standard in computer-assisted spectacle, giving the movie a visual drama that would have been impossible to achieve otherwise, and, as we go to press, earning it a deserved Oscar nomination for Best Visual Effects.

His team's artistry helped make Gladiator one of the most stunning-looking films of recent years, but Burke insists his aim is to create computer-generated images that do not call attention to themselves. Indeed, he prefers to look upon effects as tools to unfold the plot – a means to enhance and develop narrative rather than dazzle and distract the audience.

'Gladiator was an example of a film where our goal was to achieve "invisible effects",' he says. 'We were employed to expand the story-telling options of the director, so we could show bigger, wider views of Rome, we could show the Colosseum, we could create what would have been impractical to do for real.'

It says something about the incredible developments in the digital effects field that the technology is being used in ever more subtle ways. Surely anything can be achieved on film, thanks to digital advances? 'We still can't do people,' admits Burke. 'Although, we did it in Gladiator, where we essentially created digital extras to play the Colosseum audience. But that's fair enough, because we can't employ 50,000 extras and put them through wardrobe and make-up.

'On Gladiator we created history – we created architecture, people, buildings – so the film has an almost journalistic quality to it. Where possible, we always start with a real object, and we work with that. The golden rule is still to try and shoot it for real.'

A fitting tribute

When hell-raising actor Oliver Reed died before completing Gladiator, director Ridley Scott made the difficult decision to finish the star's part with the aid of computer trickery

PROXIMO is the gladiator trainer who teaches Maximus the benefits of winning over the hearts of the bloodthirsty arena crowds – a perfect cameo for the powerfully built Oliver Reed.

Famous as much for his prodigious drinking and all-round hell-raising as he was for an impressive career that included performances in the likes of Oliver!, Women in Love and The Devils, Reed died of a heart attack weeks before wrapping the film. He was 61.

'It was very sad,' director Ridley Scott says. 'I'd known Oliver for 27 years and because he'd always survived everything, including his extraordinary powers of drinking, I'd planned that Proximo would have the last word and would walk away, looking back at Rome and carrying on regardless. Obviously, I had to change that.

'I decided that he should meet his demise and, by doing so, would actually prove himself to be a good man.'

With a $100m movie almost completed, Scott had no choice but to use script changes and computer trickery to 'rework the jigsaw puzzle'.

'To make the scenes work, I had to use a double and then take three separate head shots of Ollie from other scenes and put them on the body of the double,' he explains.

Russell Crowe describes Reed's last performance as 'a wonderful memorium to his contribution to the cinema ... his best in ten years. If we'd had to reshoot with another actor it would have been horrible for all of us.'

Moving on up

Made famous by roles in Goodnight Sweetheart and Ballykissangel, Dervla Kirwan is intent on not being typecast. Her part in Sky One's new drama ensures there's no chance of that.

Interview: Garth Pearce

DERVLA KIRWAN has always been prepared to take a risk. She bared all in her major television debut, A Time to Dance. When her role in Ballykissangel led to an engagement and then public split with co-star Stephen Tompkinson, she was not afraid to admit it. But she takes it all one step further with The Bombmaker.

This tension-filled, two-part drama would have been too close for comfort for many Irish-born actresses. She plays a former terrorist bombmaker who has put her old life behind her to marry and raise a family. Her new life is shattered when her young daughter is abducted and she is given a simple choice: build a giant bomb – or she'll never see her child again.

With the continued threat from terrorist groups, is this a suitable role? Is there too great a chance that fact will mirror fiction in a devastating way? 'It is going to be a huge challenge to get audiences both in Britain and Ireland to put aside their legitimate fears of terrorism and see a human side to it,' says Kirwan. 'It forces people to face uncomfortable facts. And it is controversial. But television has to be.'

The drama, tautly directed by Graham Theakston, has an exciting cast, which includes Mark Womack (Hillsborough) playing her husband, plus Marc Warren (The Vice) and Samantha Bond (Miss Moneypenny in recent 007 movies).

It also gives another boost to the reputation of 29-year-old Kirwan, who is proving that she can combine comedy and romance with action. Her success with Goodnight Sweetheart – she took a risk by walking away from that one, too – and Hearts and Bones has established her as a television favourite.

Kirwan's role in The Bombmaker ensures she is unlikely to be typecast. 'It allowed me to show a different side to what I can do,' she says. 'This character, Andrea Hayes, is sassy and feisty. She has lived ten years of her life away from terror, and now the sins of the past are coming back to haunt her.

'I have always wanted to try new things and when new opportunities come along, I think: "Why not?" ' Kirwan has certainly been on an adventure during the 1990s, after her seduction scenes in Melvyn Bragg's A Time to Dance guaranteed publicity – and not all of it good. 'It was an incredible introduction to the media world and I was like a football, being kicked around,' she reflects. 'I was trying to make a career for myself … but to be put through all that was tough. I am still here, though.'

She has survived with a mixture of talent and good timing. She won excellent reviews for a series of stage plays before re-emerging on TV as Phoebe Bamford in Goodnight Sweetheart.

But, at a point when the series had an assured future, she quit: 'I get bored easily,' she says. 'There are so many different roles to do and only so many years to do them in. I know it looks odd taking such a risk. It is just the way I felt.'

'There are so many different roles to do and only so many years to do them in'

She repeated the same move after two years in Ballykissangel, which was a sure-fire hit: 'I knew that I could be very comfortable there for several years,' she explains. 'Again, I felt that I owed a little more to myself than that.'

There was also the high-profile split with actor Stephen Tompkinson, her co-star in Ballykissangel, after four years together: 'I suddenly realised what it meant to be in the public eye,' she says. 'In a normal, low-key relationship, it would have been very upsetting. But to share it all in public was far worse. I was made to feel a huge failure, publicly, no longer being with a man I was deeply in love with.

Testing times: The cast of the new Sky One drama

'You have to find something extra within yourself, so I just threw myself into more work. I also realized who my friends really were and how great my family was. I cannot pretend that I was happy at the time, but new things do start up in life.'

She is now in a relationship with actor Darren Boyd, while Tompkinson is engaged again, with a baby daughter.

There was an irony last year when she was asked to work with Tompkinson for a six-part television drama called Here After, to be screened shortly. 'I was cast first,' she says. 'And I had no say in his casting. I knew it was going to be difficult, but I wanted the job.

'After all the personal history between us, we had to just get on with it. Anyone who works alongside someone knows the strains they have at work when there is a break-up. But I was able to feel strong and able to do a good job. It gave me complete closure on the whole thing.'

Rewarding roles

MARC WARREN is in a very chipper mood. The Royal Television Society best actor award, for his portrayal of the evil Monks in Alan Bleasdale's TV adaptation of Oliver Twist, has just arrived in the post with his name newly engraved on it and it's standing proudly on the sideboard in his North London home.

As the 34-year-old actor admits, he's had quite a run of playing 'nasty bastards'. But then he does do them rather well.

Of course, the eyes help. Glacial-blue and piercing, they could no doubt make hell freeze over should they so wish. They helped get him into trouble in The Vice, where his career as a cop ended in disgrace when he fell in love with a prostitute.

As cold-blooded terrorist Quinn in The Bombmaker, Warren's eyes are put to full malevolent use. 'Half the time you don't see my face because I'm wearing a balaclava, which was pretty claustrophobic and certainly minimises your expressions. There wasn't much I could do except stare.'

But his role in Steven Spielberg's highly anticipated World War II mini-series Band of Brothers, co-produced by Tom Hanks, sees him in a more favourable light.

'I play an American called Albert Blithe who fought for the Easy Company and parachuted into France on D-Day,' Warren explains. 'Although Tom didn't direct the episodes I was in, from my meetings with him, he can only be described as utterly charismatic and a very unpretentious guy.'

PAULINE McLEOD

Mum's the word

Patsy Palmer and Kate Ashfield, the stars of Sky One's new drama Do or Die, talk to Jane Oddy about filming the Australian-set thriller

A chirpy EastEnder down under: Patsy Palmer lapping up the sun while filming Do or Die

SEEDY nightclubs and sun-soaked Australian beaches are hardly the kind of scenarios that anyone would associate with EastEnders' Bianca, but Patsy Palmer, the actress who played her so brilliantly, appears to have finally shrugged off her soap identity.

As she talks enthusiastically about her role in Sky One's drama Do or Die (originally entitled The Rubicon, as mentioned in February's Cable Guide), it's obvious she has moved into a different phase of her career, a long way from Walford.

Although she is grateful to the role that made her name, Patsy insists she made the right decision to leave 18 months ago.

'My children have really benefited from me spending more time with them,' she says. 'I may still be working, but it's only for a matter of weeks, whereas with EastEnders you never get a break.'

Glowing with health, Patsy also seems to have put her bumpy emotional history behind her since her marriage to 35-year-old cab driver Richard Merkell last August.

Experience has taught her not to be too confessional, but she seems content with her life. 'Richard loves kids and he is a real family man. I just know he'll always be a fantastic dad,' she says, her face lighting up.

Her expanding family includes her eldest son Charley, eight, from a former relationship, nine-month-old baby boy Fenton, and there's a third baby due later this year. She admits that Do or Die will always have a special significance for her because she got pregnant during the six-week shoot in Australia over Christmas. 'Fenton was only four months old so the new one wasn't particularly planned!'

Mother love is a major theme of the suspenseful two-part thriller and the main character, Samantha, is played by 28-year-old Kate Ashfield, who starred in last year's BBC comedy drama A Many Splintered Thing, alongside Alan Davies, and the recent feature film The Low Down.

On the surface, Samantha's life seems idyllic. She is a qualified doctor and happily married with a six-year-old son, William. But her safe existence is shattered when the boy falls desperately ill with leukaemia. 'It makes her question everything,' Kate says.

'Everything looks perfect, but she made a mistake in her past and it comes back to haunt her.' In her search for her son's real father, Michael (Tom Long), a bank robber who may have a matching blood type, Samantha heads back to Australia where she is reunited with her old backpacking friend, Claire, played by Patsy, who now lives in Sydney.

'It's obvious that they're really good friends. You see them when they're travelling together in flashback sequences. Claire was a bit mad and clearly up for doing anything, and taking anything. Both of them were out to have fun,' says Patsy, who once backpacked around Thailand.

'All they were interested in were boys and the beach. But when they meet again five years later, Claire has really grown up and has a lovely apartment and a great job.'

The two actresses became firm friends off camera and enjoyed their time together exploring Sydney. 'I can't imagine anyone not liking Patsy. We just hit it off straight away,' enthuses Kate.

'Working in Australia was like a dream come true. But, unlike Patsy, I couldn't get a tan because my character was supposed to have flown from England in the middle of winter and I had to look ghostly white!'

The two-parter pulls no punches, portraying the seedier side of Sydney and its criminal underworld, and it's packed with as many twists and turns as any soap story-line. Central to the plot is Samantha's conflicting emotions, as she faces up to her still burning passion for the charismatic Michael and her feelings for her husband, Nicholas (Hugo Speer), and her child.

Happy family? Kate Ashfield, William McDowell and Hugo Speer

The harrowing story-line affected both actresses. 'Most women would go to the ends of the Earth for their kids. It's the only thing Samantha can do,' says Patsy. 'I just couldn't imagine how awful it must be. It made me feel so sad.'

Kate, who is single, became very attached to the child actor (William McDowell) who plays her son, William. 'He was absolutely gorgeous and I got so broody,' she says.

Patsy agrees: 'He was such an excellent little actor. He really tugged on my heartstrings, he was so convincing.'

Patsy plans to work throughout her pregnancy; she's currently filming the BBC detective drama McCready and Daughter, and has produced a documentary series about her native East End. Yet family is still her main priority, and she only accepted the Do or Die role provided her family would come too. 'I would never leave my kids for that long,' she says.

'We all loved Australia, and Kate and I said we'd like to live there for a year. But when we got home we had second thoughts. I'm a London girl at heart and always will be.'

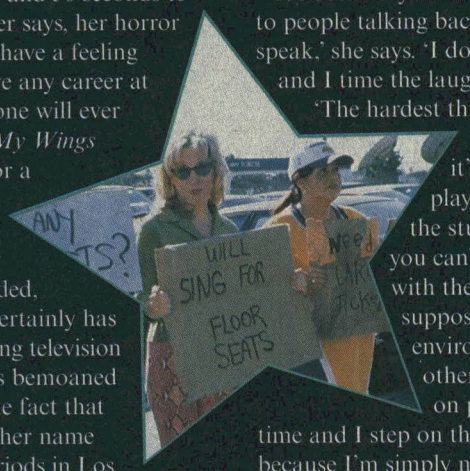
The divine comedy

Bette Midler has conquered the stage and screen, but, as she tells Lawrie Masterson, she's finding television her hardest challenge yet

PUTTING her most famous persona, the outrageous chanteuse the Divine Miss M, in a TV sitcom might have sounded like a good idea at the time, but now Bette Midler has had time to think, she is not so sure.

'My husband said it took me 30 years to build my career ... and 30 seconds to deconstruct it,' Midler says, her horror only partly mock. 'I have a feeling I'm not going to have any career at the end of this. No one will ever play Wind Beneath My Wings again at a wedding or a funeral. It's terrifying!'



While her worst fears appear unfounded, 55-year-old Midler certainly has discovered that making television is a struggle. She has bemoaned the workload and the fact that the show that bears her name requires extended periods in Los Angeles, away from her New York-based husband of 16 years, former commodities trader Martin Von Haselberg, and their 13-year-old daughter Sophie.

And despite her fame as a concert and recording artist and an actress, starring in movies such as The Rose, Outrageous Fortune and The First Wives Club, the series has not been successful enough to automatically guarantee its renewal by the American network CBS. Kevin Dunn, who played Bette's husband Roy, has already quit over dissatisfaction with his role.

Midler does not underestimate the challenge of getting it right, laying most of the blame for glitches at her own feet.

'It's been very hard because I'm not used to people talking back to me when I speak,' she says. 'I do one-woman shows and I time the laughs to the audience.

'The hardest thing for me to accept and to learn is that it's a play but it's not a play – you have to accept the studio audience but you can't really have fun with them because you're supposed to be in your own environment with the other characters. I step on peoples' lines all the time and I step on their laughs, too, because I'm simply not used to it.'

Bette is a parody of the life of a music and screen superstar, who also is a wife and mother with a whole range of eccentricities and insecurities.

Midler helped develop the series with her business partner Bonnie Bruckheimer, prompted by a combination of timing and her unhappiness with the movie industry.

> 'It's been very hard because I'm not used to people talking back to me when I speak'

'I'm too old for pictures, but I like to work and I'm really, really funny,' she says, her wicked smile making a dazzling appearance.

'I wasn't exactly pushed out or invited to leave, but I also wasn't encouraged to stay, so I felt it was time. I just couldn't stand it any more – sometimes in developing motion pictures it's five or ten years to get a script from an idea

Arc of a Diva

Moved to Hollywood to film a bit part in the movie Hawaii.

1966

First leading role in a movie in The Rose, left. Earned Academy Award nomination.

Starred in Jinxed, opposite Ken Wahl, a miserable bomb.

Real life comedy: Bette says the 'ridiculousness' of the adventures in the sitcom are very close to her real life experiences onto the screen and that's just too long.

'This just seemed like it was more liberating somehow than having to sit by the phone and wait for a project to come to fruition.'

A case in point is the long-rumoured sequel to The First Wives Club, in which she co-starred so successfully with Goldie Hawn and Diane Keaton. 'Yeah,' Midler scoffs. 'I'll believe that when I see it.'

In the meantime, the life of her small-screen persona remains close to Midler's own experience, although the bawdiness of the Divine Miss M's stage show is somewhat tempered.

'The ridiculousness of her adventures is very close to my life, yes,' Midler says. 'The chaos of it all is kind of similar. I have my partner of nearly 20 years, Bonnie Bruckheimer, in the show (Joanna Gleason plays Bette's manager and best friend, Connie) and I have a musical director who is actually modelled on a very old friend who used to come to my house and under-score the scenes of chaos.

'There are strictures in network television and there's a lot you cannot get away with, but within the framework of what we are allowed I think we're doing okay. We still have high hopes.'

CONNIE (Joanna Gleason) is Bette's long-suffering manager and best friend. She's also supposed to be the calm in Bette's storm, rather than the wind beneath her wings, but it doesn't always work out that way.

ROY (Kevin Dunn) might be married to a superstar diva, but that doesn't stop him falling asleep the moment she gets into their bed. Perhaps that's why the TV marriage was so short-lived.

OSCAR (James Dreyfus) is Bette's preening and very British accompanist and musical director. He's often at odds with Connie as well as his boss. All indications are that Oscar is a confirmed bachelor.

ROSE (Lindsay Lohan, left, then Marina Malota) is Bette's daughter. Her mum's been nominated for two Oscars and won two Emmys and four Grammys, but Rose is embarrassed to be seen with her!

Everything is good for Neil

As former Crowded House front man Neil Finn appears on VH1's Uncut, series director Max Tilney tells Kylie Northover that he really is 'the nicest guy in pop'

THE stories of outlandish demands made by rock stars are the stuff of legend – bowls of brown M&Ms only, dressing rooms decked out in certain colours and fluffy animals on hand to enhance the star's mood. And, as VH1's Uncut director Max Tilney says, when you work with the stars, it's something you have to try to comply with.

As a director of live music for VH1 and MTV, Max has worked with acts such as Blondie, Gabrielle, Paul Weller, The Beautiful South and Finley Quaye.

'It's not a myth, it really happens! We've had a few strange requests,' he says. 'We've had people in the past who have to have certain things ... Gabrielle insisted on having a certain type of honey backstage, produced by a certain breed of bees that had been kept at a specific temperature. Amazingly, we managed to find some at a local health food store!'

But not all famous musicians are difficult to deal with. This month, Kiwi singer/song-writer Neil Finn features on Uncut, and Tilney says he's one of the most laid-back stars he's worked with. 'I'd worked with Neil before, and he's always very relaxed, very down to Earth,' he says of the former Crowded House front man and Split Enz guitarist. And Finn's performance on Uncut is very much an informal affair.

'The idea of Uncut is to have a band do eight or ten of their songs in front of a quite intimate audience,' Tilney says. For Neil's performance, it's just Neil, an acoustic guitar and a baby grand piano.

With Crowded House, Neil Finn enjoyed widespread success with hits such as Don't Dream It's Over, Better Be Home Soon and Everything Is Good for You and sold millions of albums. Since their demise, Finn has been working as a solo artist, and the song-writing sensibilities that brought worldwide fame to Crowded House are still very much in evidence in his work. And the Uncut format – stripped back musical accompaniment, the small audience – is the perfect environment for his well-crafted pop melodies.

When Crowded House announced their split in 1996, fans of the award-winning pop band were devastated, and more than 150,000 people turned up to witness the band's final performance outside the Sydney Opera House. The turnout amazed even the band themselves, and at the time, Finn was quoted as saying: 'It was incredible. I think if I'd been sitting there, watching the build-up before the gig, I might have got quite nervous and said: "What are we doing here, are we mad?" But it's been a brilliant journey.'

> 'I'd worked with Neil before, and he's always very relaxed, very down to Earth'

But for him, the song-writing journey wasn't over, and this month he releases his second solo album, One Nil, tracks from which he performs exclusively on the show.

'It's always great to hear the new material from the Uncut guests,' Tilney enthuses. 'But I try to insist that they also do at least two or three older tracks.' And Finn, who has been called the 'nicest guy in pop', naturally complied. Fans are treated to acoustic versions of the Crowded House hits Fall at Your Feet, Distant Sun and Pineapple Head.

The famous song-writer also gave one fan a treat when he asked her to join him at the piano to help out with a new song, Anytime, from the forthcoming album.

He answers several questions from the audience, and when asked which artist he'd most like to work with, he reveals that he's keen to work with his famous brother Tim (Split Enz front man and occasional Crowded House member) again. 'There's always something very special about writing with Tim,' he said.

So far, there has been no official news about the brothers teaming up again, but perhaps Uncut viewers will be privy to some exclusive information.

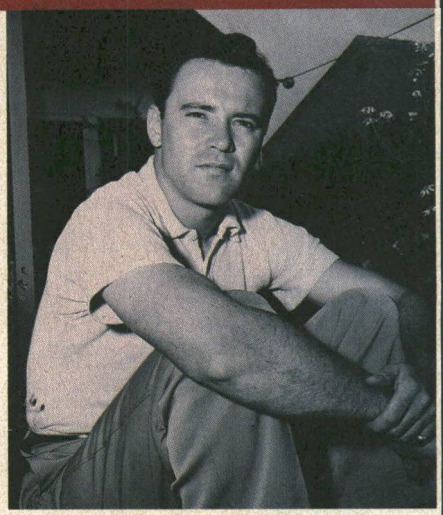
KIM NEWMAN ON ...
JACK LEMMON

Jack of all trades



While he is best known for his comedy roles, double Oscar-winner Jack Lemmon is equally at home playing priests, drunks, warlocks or cowboys

WITHIN what would seem to be a limited range – he plays average nice guys who talk fast but can't quite cope with the stresses of modern life – Jack Lemmon has managed to succeed as a comic actor, a light romantic lead, a serious thespian, a senior character player and an enduring star.

Born John Uhler Lemmon III, he was heir to a Boston doughnut fortune and was educated at Harvard before a spell in the US Navy – it's fitting that his big break was in 1955's WWII naval comedy Mister Roberts, for which he won a Best Supporting Actor Oscar. He scooped the Best Actor gong for Save the Tiger in 1973 and has notched up another six nominations.

Lemmon is best known for professional relationships with director Billy Wilder (who gave him successive Oscar-nominated roles in Some Like It Hot and The Apartment, and strong leads in Irma la Douce and Avanti!) and Walter Matthau, with whom he appeared unforgettably in The Odd Couple (and, forgettably, The Odd Couple II), a couple of Grumpy Old Men movies, one underrated Wilder satire (The Fortune Cookie) and two sad Wilder failures (The Front Page and Buddy Buddy). Lemmon has directed only one film, Kotch (1971), starring Matthau. In both these partnerships, Lemmon is the less flashy player, gamely letting himself be dressed as a woman, confined to a wheelchair, left out in the rain or fussily tidying up. But he also delivers the heart that arch-cynics really need to prevent hilarious misanthropy from becoming completely unbearable.

He has played a warlock (Bell, Book and Candle), an alcoholic (Days of Wine and Roses), a would-be killer (How to Murder Your Wife), a priest (Mass Appeal) and bad or mad fathers (in the filmed record of the 1986 Broadway version of Long Day's Journey into Night and Dad). But only once the villain, and even then as a joke (The Great Race). He does flawed gutlessness better than anyone, though usually he comes through in the end, as when, in The China Syndrome, his troubled power station supervisor admits that a nuclear meltdown would send plutonium sizzling through the Earth to China, or the father in Missing who is forced to realize that his rebel son really was right about the CIA and Chile.

Some of his best work has been much darker than his image – as the New Yorker driven to a nervous breakdown by unemployment in The Prisoner of Second Avenue, or the troubled salesman who hustles but never scores in Glengarry Glen Ross.

Early in his career, he moved and talked faster than anyone in the movies. And this month on Carlton Cinema, there's a chance to marvel at vintage Lemmon, and note how he can play off a variety of leading ladies: It Should Happen to You, his 1954 debut film, teams him with dizzy blonde Judy Holliday in a satire on the advertising business; It Happened to Jane, from 1959, casts him as a young lawyer in a comedy that finds Doris Day running a lobster business; and 1957's Fire Down Below, a rare venture into macho action, in which he and Robert Mitchum brawl all over the South Seas in an argument about who gets Rita Hayworth. A decade later, Matthau became the fast-talker in The Fortune Cookie, in which injured TV cameraman Lemmon is suckered into an insurance scam and pretends to be crippled, allowing Wilder to get jabs into the legal profession and the media.

IN THE FRAME

CORBIN BERNSEN

What's your favourite movie?

A Stanley Kubrick film called Paths of Glory. Kirk Douglas's character is so well drawn and executed. The choice he has to make is extraordinary, to go into battle knowing it means almost certain death.

Who's your favourite actor?

Jack Lemmon, who also inspired me when I was training. His ability to ride the fine line between comedy and tragedy is unparalleled.

What's your first memory of the cinema?

I went with a great aunt who used to live with us. I was quite young, maybe five or six. For some reason, the film that sticks out the most, and it would have to have been a couple of years later, was Barbarella with Jane Fonda.

What kind of movies do you prefer to watch?

I don't really have a favourite movie genre, though I am drawn to dramas. I love character work, especially when there are several characters in a situation, like in The Big Chill and Glengarry Glen Ross.

Which of the films that you've acted in are you most proud of?

The Dentist (1996) was a bizarre film, and not the greatest one of all time, but loads of fun to do, and I had a challenging character that I feel was well executed. As for pure fun films, Major League (1989) was a terrific experience and a great comedy.

Corbin Bernsen can be seen in LA Law on Granada Plus, weekdays at 2.00pm and 8.00pm, from Monday 2nd.

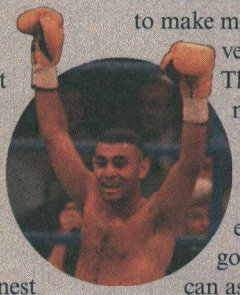
COMPILED BY TEAMWORK

JUST over a year ago, in a post-fight interview, a shell-shocked Vuyani Bungu was unable to pinpoint whether the punch that had put him down had been a right or a left. Perhaps out of sympathy, someone in the media scrum helped him out – it was both. The man who delivered that bone-jarring combination was Prince Naseem Hamed.



On Saturday 7 April, the indomitable Hamed faces his sternest test yet when he takes on Marco Antonio Barrera at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas.

Barrera is a seasoned campaigner and a formidable fighter. Though he has held and relinquished just about every belt available to a featherweight, Hamed has picked a tough cookie this time and may have bitten off more than he can chew.

The endless bravado and over-the-top stage entrances that have become Naz's stock in trade have won him few fans among boxing connoisseurs and his readiness to name himself among the boxing greats has drawn stinging criticism.

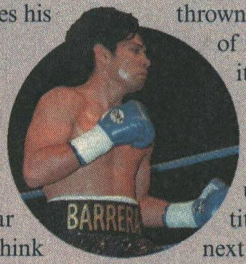
Sour grapes from US-biased pundits? Possibly. After all, it took Lennox Lewis almost a decade to gain respect in America. That said, those who have doubted the credibility and calibre of Hamed's past opponents must now accept that with Barrera he has moved to another level.

Naseem Hamed believes it is his destiny to go down in the annals of boxing history as the greatest pound-for-pound fighter there has ever been. And to that end he has invited Barrera to the Vegas dust-up in an attempt to affirm that, title or no title, he will beat any featherweight who is foolish enough to step into the ring with him.

'This is the fight that is basically going to make me, just like Sugar Ray Leonard versus Marvin Hagler made them. This is going to stick in people's minds – that I boxed this kid in his prime, at his best time to fight, and he boxed me in my prime. It's going to be an explosive fight. One of us is going to get knocked out. And I can assure you it isn't going to be me.'

With an immaculate record of 35 wins in 35 fights, the 27-year-old Sheffield-born showman could be forgiven for occasionally losing his focus. But Hamed refuses to submit to complacency and he believes his public play as big a part in giving him the correct mind-set for a fight as does his own desire for greatness.

'When it comes to fighting, everything else goes out the window,' he explains. 'I'm focused on one person and there is nothing else I think about – apart from being victorious. I hear that bell go and that's it. I don't think about anything apart from winning.'



The performer and the man seem to be of the same mind. This is his time; this is the point in his career when, if he is to be considered in the same league as his idol Muhammad Ali, he has to put his reputation on the line.

'I want to bring boxing back to a point where one fight and one belt secures the whole division and everybody knows who the champion is, instead of about ten belts flying around with each one representing a world title. The best fighters in the division should fight each other. That's the way it should be and that's what I'm doing.'

Away from the ring, Hamed is true to his princely moniker; courteous and quite the opposite of the strutting exhibitionist who treats the arena like his private fiefdom. Nevertheless, his unshakeable confidence in his own ability is ever evident.

'I don't feel that there is going to be much to prove after this fight,' he states in typically immodest fashion, before adding: 'There's not much for me to prove before the fight – this is something I want to do for myself. Ultimately, I want to sweep the whole board. As many of these great fighters that there are – or are supposed to be – bring them forward, let's get it on!'

In relinquishing his belts, Hamed has thrown down a gauntlet to the cream of the featherweight division – and it will be interesting to see who accepts his challenge. The southpaw has already confessed his desire to fight the unbeaten WBC featherweight title holder Erik Morales as the next step in his master plan, and after that who knows. But before that, there is the sizeable obstacle posed by Marco Antonio Barrera waiting in Vegas. And, whatever happens, you know it is going to be one hell of a fight.

LIVERPOOL V LEEDS UNITED
SKY SPORTS 1 FRIDAY 13TH 11.00AM – LIVE

The long Good Friday

There will be some old scores to settle when Liverpool meet Leeds, reports Jeremy Butler

LEEDS star Dominic Matteo has a point to prove when he returns to Anfield for the first time for this month's Premier League clash.

The former Liverpool defender left the club last summer just before Reds manager Gérard Houllier bought German left-back Christian Ziege in a protracted £5.5m transfer from Middlesbrough.

The Scottish international, who turns 27 this month, reveals: 'Ziege was going to come in and play left-back, and when that happened, I knew I was probably going to end up playing second fiddle.

'That was difficult to handle when you have been at a club as long as I have. But the time was right for a new challenge, and I needed to keep playing first team football.'

Matteo joined Premier League title rivals Leeds, who, to his delight, were also preparing for a first outing in the high-profile Champions League.

Although Matteo failed an initial medical, United knew they had a bargain and happily waited for the injury to clear up before finalizing the £4.25m deal.

He says: 'This was the right move for me, and I was devastated when I failed the medical because of a tear in my knee. Thankfully, the manager [David O'Leary] and the chairman, Peter Ridsdale, told me they still wanted to sign me for five years, and told me to go away for six weeks and get myself fit again.

'I did that and, looking back now, I don't hold any grudges towards Liverpool – quite the opposite. Without their help and guidance, where would I be now?'

At least Matteo enjoyed a few seasons in a Liverpool shirt – something Leeds's on-loan striker Robbie Keane once dreamed of.

The Dubliner, who grew up in Ireland supporting the Reds, admits: 'I've always been a Reds fan – it runs in the family. As a kid, I was lucky enough to get to Anfield a couple of times to watch them, and it was always my dream to pull on a red shirt.

'I got the chance to make that come true when they asked me to sign as a 14-year-old, but my parents told me not to join them just because I was a huge fan of theirs.

'When Wolves eventually made a move for me, I thought I would maybe have a better chance of getting some first team football under my belt at an early age. 'Looking back, that was a big decision, but I don't have any regrets.'

The 20-year-old Republic of Ireland international switched from Wolves to Coventry City and then on to Italian Serie A side Inter Milan in a mega money move. He now partners Australian hit man Mark Viduka in the Leeds attack and hopes to complete a £13m transfer to Elland Road in the summer.

It was Viduka who scored all his side's goals in Leeds's 4-3 league win at Elland Road in November and Liverpool's goalkeeper that day, Sander Westerveld, says: 'Viduka is a top quality player. There's no doubt about that. He didn't have to prove anything to me that day because I already knew how good he was.

'But the truth is, we played much better than Leeds, and we deserved to win that game. Even at 3-3 I was feeling disappointed because I thought we were only going to pick up a point.

'Because of the way we'd been playing, it never crossed my mind that we would get nothing from the game.'

Beyond the pale

Hypnotically paced and photographed with low-key lighting by Bruce Surtees, who draws almost entirely from a palette of earthy, weathered browns, Clint Eastwood's Western Pale Rider is a melancholy and mysterious mood piece. The film may not be the most original the genre has to offer – it's a mystical mix-and-match of themes culled from the 1953 classic Shane (a child idolizing a secretive, strong-willed stranger); the spaghetti horse operas of Sergio Leone (the baroque framing and the variation on the Man with No Name character); and Eastwood's own supernatural Western High Plains Drifter. Still, it's put on the screen with undeniable aplomb. Eastwood plays a (ghostly) gun-fighting preacher who arouses some troubling emotions when he appears, seemingly invoked by the prayers of a teenage girl (Sydney Penny), to protect the folk of a beleaguered gold-mining colony. The movie is directed with period panache and boasts some quietly effective performances, with Eastwood conveying the enigmatic air required of the preacher with consummate skill.

LA Law – the court order of the day

When Americans began collecting lawsuits like they were the must-have of the 1980s, NBC cashed in with a new legal drama created by Terry Louise Fisher and Hill Street Blues producer Steven Bochco. Making its debut in 1986, LA Law depicted life at McKenzie, Brackman, Chaney & Kuzak, a top Los Angeles law firm. Fine acting from the likes of Larry Drake, as the retarded Benny Stulwicz, saved it from being another sex-and-money soap. As it matured, it became known for its strong character-based plots, interspersed with quality courtroom battles, though the greatest fights were always fought in the bedroom. Michael Tucker and Jill Eikenberry (above), who played couple Stuart Markowitz and Ann Kelsey, were husband and wife off screen too – so chemistry between their characters was rarely a problem. Critically acclaimed, with a string of awards to its name, the show strolled into the 1990s with confidence, only to have its bubble burst by the departure of a number of mainstays. In a bid to recapture the old magic, story-lines became racier, with British actress Amanda Donohoe being introduced as a bisexual lawyer. When it ended in 1994, LA Law was a shadow of its former glorious self. But at least it left a ready-made audience for Ally McBeal. Enjoy the re-runs.

The scientific hoax of the century

From crop circles to fairies at the bottom of the garden, history has seen its fair share of hoaxes. While common practical jokes at best amuse, the truly great ones create mystery and astonishment. This month, in honour of April Fool's Day, The History Channel celebrates one of the most successful historical pranks in Piltdown Man. In 1912 a skull was 'discovered' in Piltdown, Sussex. Far from being an ordinary skull, this find, hastily proclaimed as a genuine fossil, seemed to confirm Darwin's then still controversial theory that humans had descended from apes. It was proof of the 'missing link', and a real boost for British scientists, who felt left out by discoveries on the continent. But in 1953, new methods of testing revealed that the ape-man was a fraud – the jaw was from a modern orang-utan and the cranium was only about 600 years old. Both had been deliberately aged with chemicals. It was awarded the title of the Biggest Scientific Hoax of the Century. The desire to be part of a great discovery blinded those charged with authenticating it – national pride had stopped leading scientists from noticing the scratch marks on the jaw and teeth made by filing them down.

As the entire scientific community was left with egg on its face, the culprit was seemingly too nervous to come forward, but suspects include palaeontologists, geologists, and even Sherlock Holmes's creator, novelist Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

VIGILANTES
The History Channel 9.00pm
The very word 'vigilante' has negative connotations, but for those trying to survive American frontier life during the gold rush, vigilante bands were frequently the only defence against crime. This documentary premiere investigates that anarchic era.

by Ross Biddiscombe

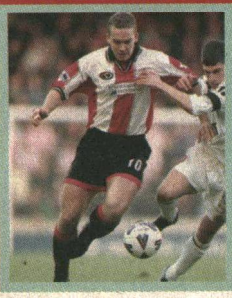
LIVE FORD MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL: SOUTHAMPTON V IPSWICH TOWN SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM



Ipswich travel from Suffolk to the south coast to take on Southampton at the Dell. The visitors (whose Marcus Stewart is pictured, right) have enjoyed their best season in the top flight since the glory days of 1970s and early 1980s, when George Burley – their present manager – was playing for the club, and they could qualify for a place in Europe. Meanwhile, the Saints (whose Kevin Davies is pictured, left) will try and avenge the 3-1 defeat which Town inflicted on them at Portman Road at the end of last year.

LADIES EURO TOUR GOLF: TAIWAN OPEN
SKY SPORTS 2 10.30AM, 3.00PM

The Taiwan Open is a new event on the Ladies European Tour, which is trying to emerge from the shdow of its American counterpart by moving further afield. Moving around the world certainly helped the men's European Tour stay fresh. British stalwart Laura Davies (pictured) will be among the star names battling for the lion's share of the £100,000 prize. Davies's determination in last year's Solheim Cup was evidence that she is far from a spent force, and another win in a new country would work wonders for her.

Invasion of the body snatchers

Digging the dirt on corpse stealing for medical purposes, The History Channel premieres Body Snatchers. With the scandal of the Alder Hey Children's Hospital not far behind us, this macabre tale of the 18th-century practice bears more than a passing modern-day resemblance. So it's a sensitive subject, especially as the programme puts moral, theological, philosophical, legal and social issues aside to suggest that grave robbing brought medicine out of the Dark Ages, allowing anatomists to practise organ transplantation, for example. But the only way to acquire a body was to go to a graveyard and dig one up. This gave way to a new, profitable, profession – body snatching, or ressurectionism as it became known. On revealing their deeds, uproar ensued, not least over the case of William Hare and William Burke, Irish immigrants who lived near one of Europe's major centres of medical education in Edinburgh. Smelling profit, the pair began grave robbing, selling their wares to the likes of Robert Knox, an eminent anatomist, who used the cadavers in his demonstrations at Edinburgh's medical school. With demand increasing, Burke and Hare decided that serial killing would be easier, and began supplying bodies on an 'ask no questions basis'. When the law caught up with them in 1828, Hare turned King's evidence and Burke alone was convicted and hung. In a twist of fate, his body was donated to Edinburgh's medical school for 'useful dissection' and his skeleton remains on display at the university today. This and other cases led to the Anatomy Act (1832), which permitted medical schools' legal acquisition of unclaimed bodies.

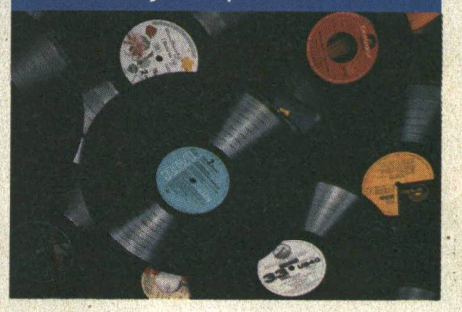
The History Channel, Sunday 8th, 9.00pm

You avenging me?

A seminal study of urban alienation, Martin Scorsese's Taxi Driver is now regarded as one of the key films of the 1970s. The movie is seen through the eyes of New York cabbie Travis Bickle (Robert De Niro), an inarticulate misfit who takes it upon himself to rid the world of all that is 'sick, venal'. By the phantasmagoric, blood-drenched climax, Bickle has mutated into a mohawked avenging angel who embarks on an apocalyptic orgy of violence to rescue a teenage prostitute, played with disturbing maturity by the 13-year-old Jodie Foster. Screenwriter Paul Schrader committed the cathartic screenplay to paper in a feverish ten-day burst after enduring a particularly troubled period in his life. The edginess that he was feeling at the time translates with great potency to the screen, and the film becomes even more unsettling when you learn how much of it was taken directly from Schrader's own experiences: lonely, depressed, unable to sleep and suffering from stomach cramps, Schrader had taken to driving around the seedier side of town in his car and visiting all-night adult cinemas. Bickle even wears articles of clothing straight out of Schrader's wardrobe. That De Niro could make such a dangerously disturbed individual as Bickle sympathetic is a tribute to his incredible, insightful portrayal: Bickle's overtures to Betsy (Cybill Shepherd), the presidential campaign worker whose idealized image he becomes obsessed with, are touching in their misguided awkwardness and his transformation from shy loner to killing machine is charted with devastating skill. And the look of the film is receptive to Bickle's state of mind; with its strange camera movements and kaleidoscopic neons the film brilliantly succeeds in becoming the 'New York Gothic' that Scorsese had envisioned. Twenty five years after its controversial theatrical release, Taxi Driver still packs a mighty punch.

FilmFour, Wednesday 11th, 10.05pm

The vinyl experience



For all their pristine sound quality and convenient size, CDs don't seem to inspire the same degree of obsessive behaviour in music collectors as vinyl. Nick Hornby knew as much when he wrote his heart-felt valentine to vinyl, High Fidelity. There's a richness to records that's often lacking in those little silver platters – the inevitable snap, crackle and pop that are testament to a much-loved album's history of plays merely adding to the listening experience. And the demise of the LP has spelt the end of the album cover as an art form. Where are the CD-age equivalents of classic, brilliantly conceived covers such as Sgt Pepper? UK Horizons delves into the intense world of the vinyl junkie this week. And the programme, Vinyl, leaves you with the feeling that the world would be a much sadder place without the likes of the man who has memorized every track in the catalogue of budget label K-Tel.

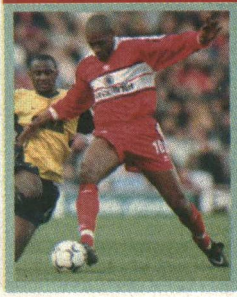
LIVE FORD MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL: MIDDLESBROUGH V SUNDERLAND SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM



At the Riverside Stadium, a seemingly revitalised Middlesbrough play host to Sunderland, who sit at the other end of the table. Will Terry Venables continue his good work for Boro and manage to pull them well clear of the relegation zone? At their last meeting in December it was Sunderland who took all the points. To turn the tables, the Teesiders will need the good services of strikers Brian Deane (pictured, left) and Hamilton Ricard to counter the scoring skills of Sunderland's Kevin Phillips (pictured, right).

Jamie Spence (pictured) waited eight years between his first and his second PGA European Tour title, the Moroccan Open in Marrakech, which he won by four shots last year, pocketing the winner's cheque for $106,000. During that time, Spence has represented England in various team events and won plenty of money, but never made the leap into the top echelon. Today, the 37-year-old from Tunbridge Wells, who is an avid Arsenal fan, will be gunning for a repeat victory as he begins the defence of his title.

DBZ PREMIERE EPISODES AND GREAT PRIZES!

HAVING A BALL!

THE animated tale of Goku, the powerful Saiyan warrior, and his battle against evil to possess the seven orange dragonballs, has taken the world by storm! To celebrate the long-awaited arrival of the Android and Cell sagas on Cartoon Network, here are some fast facts to test your DBZ know-how!

DRAGONBALL Z – DID YOU KNOW?

- Dragonball began on TV in Japan on 26 February 1986, followed by the first Dragonball Z series in April 1989. 291 episodes were created. A new series, Dragonball GT, was made for TV in 1997, set ten years after Dragonball Z.
- The Dragonball saga lasted over 500 episodes altogether during its ten-year run in Japan.
- Dragonball Z is one of the most requested searches on the web.
- DBZ is the longest-running animated series in television history and is a global phenomenon!
- Unlike most animated series, the characters in Dragonball actually grow up – hence Goku getting married and having a son, Gohan, in Dragonball, before the adventures continue in Dragonball Z.
- Goku's hair continues to grow over the three series, turning blond as his power level grows.
- For the ultimate Dragonball tournament, you can launch your very own DBZ battle on www.cartoonnetwork.co.uk

Brand new episodes of Dragonball Z, including the Android and Cell sagas, start in Toonami on Cartoon Network, weekdays, 5.00pm, and weekends, 11.00am, from Monday 2nd

WIN!

Fancy owning some exclusive DBZ gear? We have some mega action figures and trading cards, currently unavailable in the UK, up for grabs! Ten winners will each get an action figure and five packs of trading cards, five runners-up will each receive five packs of trading cards. To enter, answer this question:

What is Goku's son called in Dragonball Z?

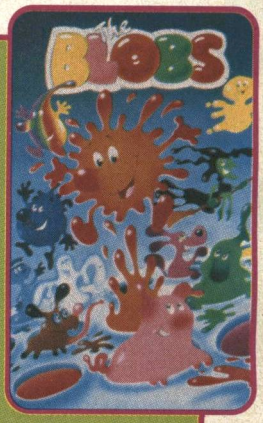
Send your answer on a postcard, with name and address, to Cable Guide/DBZ competition, PO BOX 2176, London W1A 5TW. Closing date 30 April 2001. The first 15 correct entries drawn will win. Prize action figures cannot be specified. Full Cable Guide rules on page 53.

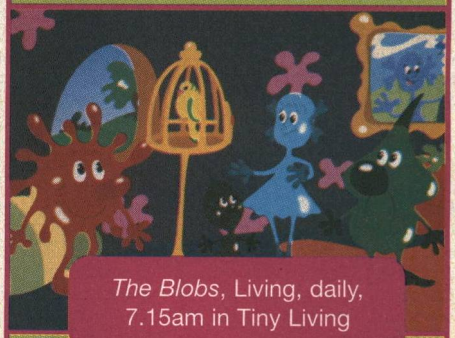
CARTOON NETWORK

Splish, splash, splosh!



POPPY RED, Fizzy Orange, Puppy Purple and friends invite you to step inside the colourful kingdom of Paintbox Land and meet The Blobs!

King Royal Blue presides over a vibrant mix of characters whose adventures are told in ten-minute episodes, voiced by actress Jane Horrocks. Jane tells Cable Guide that the characters' voices are based on people she knew, and the singing was especially enjoyable: 'Yes, really good fun,' she says. 'But I had to do it by ear, as I can't read music!'



The Blobs, Living, daily, 7.15am in Tiny Living

Sing along ...

In Paintbox Land, if you're a blob,
You can change for any job,
Want to ski, just grow your toes,
See the sea, just blow your nose,
Flap your ears and pigs can fly,
Startling witches in the sky ...

It's Puppy Purple ...
It's not the night
That's giving Mousy Brown a fright,
There's Ghostly White,
What has he seen?
Oh no, it's grouchy, Grumbly Green,
There's the King, he's Royal Blue,
And Poppy Red,
she's popped up too ...

Creatures called The Blobs!

LIVE FORD FOOTBALL SPECIAL: LIVERPOOL V LEEDS UNITED SKY SPORTS 1 11.00AM

Top action from Anfield is on the cards as two of the Premier League's biggest clubs meet for the third time this season. It was Liverpool who ended Leeds's FA Cup run in January with a 2-0 win at Elland Road. The victory had come as sweet revenge for the Reds who were still smarting from Mark Viduka's (pictured, right) four-goal league blitz two months earlier. Hoping to be in the Liverpool forward line-up will be Emile Heskey and home-grown talent Robbie Fowler (pictured, left).

Week 3

Saturday 14th April-Friday 20th April

'That's the story of the Hurricane ...'

To see the name Denzel Washington on the opening credits of a movie is to be guaranteed its quality. Washington tackles all his roles with such conviction that he can transcend miscasting (For Queen and Country, Virtuosity) to emerge with honour. Not that he was hampered with that problem in this week's premiere of The Hurricane, a passionately assembled biopic of Rubin 'Hurricane' Carter, the middleweight boxer who was wrongly jailed for murder, to which Washington supplies one of his most committed and persuasive performances. The film represents his latest opportunity to play a strong, misunderstood, real-life black figure (see also Cry Freedom and Malcolm X), and it's difficult to imagine another actor more suited to the part. Fans of Bob Dylan will already be familiar with Carter's plight through his track The Hurricane, an informed, brilliantly written protest song which opens his Desire album and is occasionally used to comment on the action in the movie. The audience's route into the film is via the character Lesra Martin (Vicellous Reon Shannon), a bright but unschooled black teenager from New York who's being mentored by three white Canadian intellectuals. He becomes fascinated with the boxer after reading The 16th Round, his autobiography written in prison, which allows for evocative flashbacks that detail Carter's eventful and troubled life up until his incarceration. Lesra soon sparks up a friendship with Carter, and he and the Canadians take it upon themselves to clear his name. The film has its problems: it often takes liberties with the truth for dubious dramatic purposes, and there are some structural uncertainties (Lesra, the audience identification figure throughout, drops into the background towards the end). But the compensating triumph is Washington's remarkable Golden Globe-winning portrayal – he constantly commands the attention in the role, investing Carter with a sense of depth and dignity, and looking for all the world like a genuine middleweight contender in the fight scenes (which isn't surprising, as he trained for more than a year to prepare for the part). For all Washington's domination of proceedings, though, he still receives excellent support from young Shannon, who charts Lesra's development from awkward and awestruck teen to proud young man with great skill and subtlety.

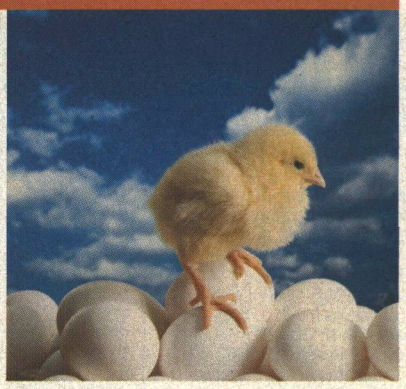
Costa Del Loyd!

Globe-trotting gastronome Loyd Grossman does not disguise his passion for all things España in Loyd on Location – Spain, a celebratory survey of the culture and cuisine of the country, which makes its debut on Taste (formerly Carlton Food Network) this week. When he spoke to Cable Guide, Loyd admitted to being 'knocked out' by the sheer variety of regional Spanish dishes. He said of the series: 'It's about food, the places and the people. It's about how the Spanish love going out to eat. Over here, until fairly recently, you dined out on special occasions – in Spain, it's part of their tradition.' In this week's edition, Loyd finds himself in Seville. 'It's an extraordinarily sultry, sensual city with orange trees growing in the streets,' he enthuses. To many, Spanish food begins and ends with paella. And it's these viewers Loyd is hoping to educate with his lovingly made six-part series.

Taste, Monday 16th, 1.00pm and 9.00pm

Faith no more?



Think of Easter and, in our secular age, most of us think of chocolate eggs. The spiritual significance of the season seems to have been lost among a large part of the population. Discovery is attempting to redress the religious balance on Easter Sunday. Whether you're curious about the healing powers of holy water or cynical about the real tears that have purportedly flowed from a statue of the Virgin Mary, the trio of religious-themed programmes certainly provide food for thought. First up, the documentary Stigmata looks at the rare phenomenon which sees people experience the wounds of Christ's crucifixion. Following that there's The Spanish Inquisition, which looks at medieval Catholic Spain's attempt at ridding itself of undesirables – all in the guise of fighting heresy, of course. And finally there's Miracle Police, which attempts to put modern miracles under the microscope – an exercise that's particularly apt given that the Pope has acknowledged more miracles in his term than all his 20th-century predecessors combined.

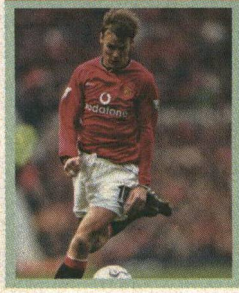
LIVE FORD FOOTBALL SPECIAL: MANCHESTER UNITED V COVENTRY CITY SKY SPORTS 1 11.30AM



Coventry travel to the lion's den that is Old Trafford to take on the might of Manchester United and will be sure to put up a good fight for the points they desperately need to stave off relegation. But Gordon Strachan's men, including midfield talent David Thompson (pictured, right), will have their hands full, especially with veteran United strikers like Teddy Sheringham (pictured, left) enjoying such a successful season. The struggling Sky Blues have just six games to save their bacon after 34 consecutive seasons in the top flight.

LIVE BLACKBURN ROVERS V HUDDERSFIELD TOWN SKY SPORTS 2 12NOON

Blackburn Rovers are edging closer to a return to the Premier League after a two-year absence and should focus on their aim of at least making one of the four play-off spots as they take on a struggling Huddersfield Town at Ewood Park today. The Terriers will do well to stifle the talents of Rovers' striker Matt Jansen (pictured), but at the same time will need to make an impact at the other end of the pitch, as they are in desperate need of points to try and lift them out of the relegation zone.

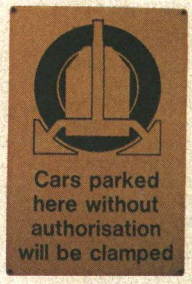
Vicki Butler-Henderson
GIRL RACER

Reversal of fortune



She's well known as a motoring expert, but Vicki Butler-Henderson freely admits that when it comes to parking, she's well and truly unqualified

THERE is no getting away from the fact that I have been 'blessed' with the World's Worst Parking gene. And if that's not bad enough, I'm a woman, too.

The members of the Perfect Parkers Union must have wept when I started to drive. But at least I freely admit to this failing. So much so, in fact, that my parking problem has become public knowledge and even provoked a letter in Maxim magazine. The writer said I shouldn't be presenting Top Gear if I'm not an expert in my field. I would agree with him if I worked for Top Reverse Gear, but I don't. We ladies are universally ridiculed for our inability to put a car perfectly into the smallest of spaces, let alone reverse into them.

I'm sure there are some exceptions to the rule (good on you, girls), but even scientists have proof that a woman's brain isn't best suited to popping the car neatly into a space. And I'm afraid that I do absolutely nothing to dispel the 'myth'. In fact, I'm so bad I've embraced my defect with such fervour that I'm now proud of it. But, I console myself in the knowledge that I can go forwards and 'sideways' with professional gusto!

And it's not all bad – there are benefits to being a shoddy parker. The biggest is that it is so easy to find the car again. You know, it's always the one with the rear end poking into the road, or with its bonnet in the air because it's parked on the pavement.

But my bad parking habit does mean that I've developed an unhealthily intimate relationship with traffic wardens, and all the penalties they dish out. This uniformed lot are an amazing breed. They come in all shapes and sizes and always materialize out of nowhere. I swear that in the evenings they moonlight as magicians, bewildering audiences with their tricks. They perfect their illusions during daylight hours by seemingly walking through shop walls and appearing out of lamp posts to place tickets on badly parked vehicles. They become completely invisible when they do this, though, and I have personal proof for you.

I recently left my car on double yellows (yes, foolish I admit) in London to see a friend who worked in a shop just two yards from where I'd parked. Her desk was next to a big window that gave us a clear view of my car. Yet after just three minutes, a warden had sneaked up and given me a ticket without being seen.

How could this be? The car was visible to two pairs of eyes the whole time. I was stunned – this traffic warden must have been a real pro. And when I tried to work out how this magic had been done, I could only conclude that traffic wardens have supernatural abilities. It's no wonder we all fear them.

LIVE EURO TOUR GOLF: OPEN DE ESPANA
SKY SPORTS 1 1.00PM

The Open de España was the maiden European Tour victory for England's Brian Davis (pictured) last year. Davis, who defends the title at the PGA Golf de Catalunya, Girona, from today, is one of a gang of young pretenders to the European crowns previously held by the Faldos, Langers and Lyles of this world. Along with Justin Rose, Anthony Wall and David Park among others, the teenagers and twentysomethings are competing at the highest levels, and one of them may be Ryder Cup-bound before very long.

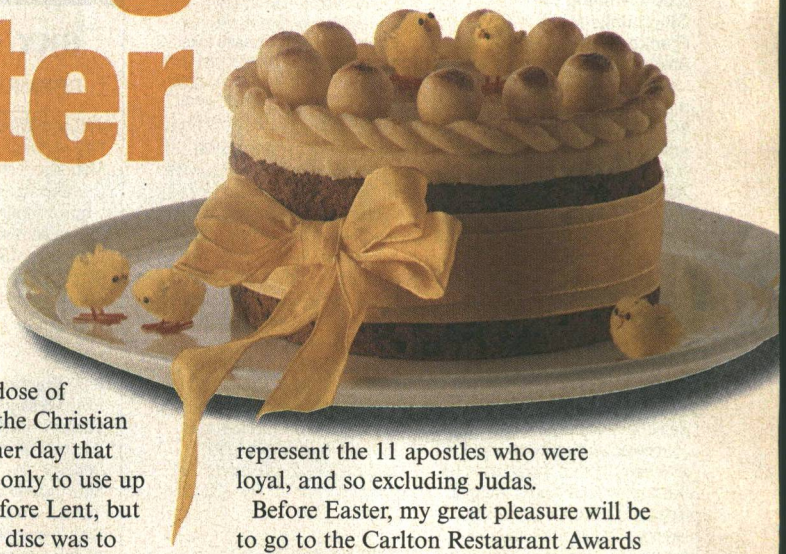
OUT AND ABOUT

Spring into Easter



Chocolate may come to mind when you think of Easter, but Ross Burden celebrates with traditional festive fare

THIS month has many things to recommend it; April Fool's Day, the Cable Guide Awards and Easter.

The most holy of the Christian festivals has become a cocoa-fest worthy of Montezuma, with the GNP (gross national product) of a small South American nation spent in the run up to Easter Monday. Far from trivial enquiries of just how you consume yours, there are some far more interesting things about Easter and its customs.

The first holiday of the year has quite a history chez Burden – though for some years, I've looked to the East for an Easter break. I started by going to Prague and in subsequent years I've travelled across Poland and Russia. This year, I'm off to the land of St Stephen – Hungary.

Budapest is the last great Central European city that I haven't seen and I am really excited. I don't think it'll be all goulash and bigos – the spas and Turkish baths sound very relaxing.

Easter has a hearty dose of Paganism mixed into the Christian tale. I was told the other day that Pancake Day was not only to use up the eggs and butter before Lent, but that the round, yellow disc was to represent the sun, which, it was hoped, would soon appear.

A particularly British foodstuff for Easter is the simnel cake, the name of which comes from the fine quality of the flour (simila flour). During the 1600s, Mothering Sunday, celebrated on the fourth Sunday after Lent, honoured the mothers of England, and as Christianity spread throughout England, the celebration changed to honour the 'Mother church' as well.

The custom became so well established that even servants were allowed the day off to visit their mothers, and the simnel cake was taken along as a festive touch.

The fruity cakes were traditionally decorated with 11 marzipan balls to represent the 11 apostles who were loyal, and so excluding Judas.

Before Easter, my great pleasure will be to go to the Carlton Restaurant Awards as a guest of Taste (formerly Carlton Food Network) and then to the Cable Guide Awards. I get to give away the gong for the Best Sports Channel. The Awards are a pivotal event for the Cable industry, so the assembled throng will be quite glittering. It's a really great opportunity to catch up with Cable luminaries, such as Richard Blackwood and Kate Thornton.

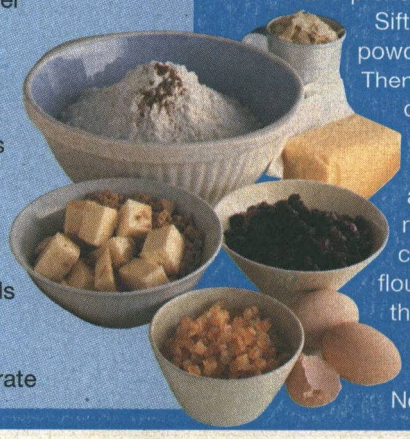
More big Cable news is the re-launch of Carlton Food Network as Taste, but more of that next month.

Happy baking, and don't forget Mother! Viszlat! ('See you around' in Hungarian.)

Catch Ross in Ross on the Range, Taste (formerly Carlton Food Network) from Monday 2nd, 3.30pm

TASTE TRADITIONAL SIMNEL CAKE

200g plain flour
2.5ml baking powder
Pinch of salt
150g butter
150g caster sugar
4 eggs
100g glacé cherries
150g currants
150g sultanas
100g raisins
50g peel
50g ground almonds
450g marzipan
2 tbsps apricot jam
Chicks etc to decorate



Line and grease an 18cm cake tin, and preheat the oven to 180°C. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Then in a separate bowl cream the butter and sugar. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, adding a little flour if necessary to stop it curdling. Fold in the flour mixture and then the dried fruits.

Spoon a third of the mixture into the tin. Next, cut off a third of the marzipan, roll into a disc (slightly smaller than the tin) and lay it on the mixture. Top with the rest of the mixture. Bake for an hour, reduce the heat to 160°C and cook for another 90 minutes, or until a skewer comes out clean.

Allow to cool in the tin and turn out. When completely cool, melt the apricot jam and spread it over the top of the cake. Divide the remaining marzipan in two and roll one half into a circle to cover the cake, trimming any overhang. Roll the rest of it into 11 balls and attach to the rim of the cake. Use a blow torch or hot grill to slightly brown the balls. Decorate with chicks and mini eggs.

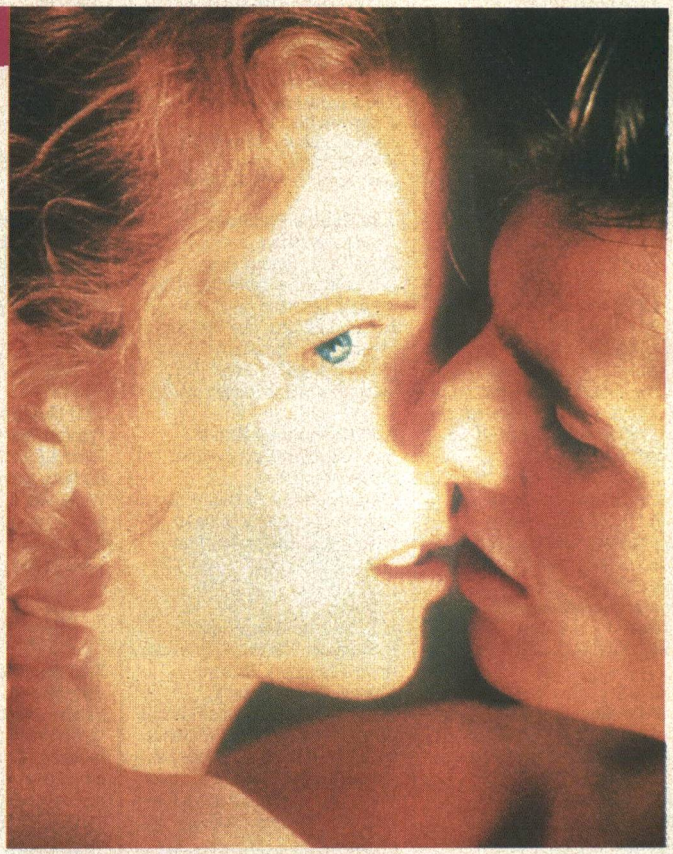
The eyes have it



Eyes Wide Shut, the cinematic swan song of the late Stanley Kubrick, left those viewers expecting the taboo-busting erotic drama that advance word had suggested feeling bemused, annoyed and bored. While it cannot be compared favourably to the great Kubrick works such as or 2001: A Space Odyssey or A Clockwork Orange, the film's debut screening on Sky Premier at least allows the opportunity for a much-needed reappraisal. It still never threatens to become the masterpiece that everyone had hoped for – more like a flawed curio – but if you can forgive its narcotic pacing and lapses in logic, you will be rewarded with an atmospheric and thought-provoking musing on the destructive nature of jealousy. After hearing a confession from his wife (Nicole Kidman) concerning the powerfully lustful thoughts she once harboured for a total stranger, wealthy doctor Bill Hartford (Tom Cruise) embarks on a dark and dangerous sexual journey, culminating in his gate-crashing a masked orgy staged by a secretive cult. The section of the film that has provoked much conversation, especially among couples, belongs to Kidman. The actress shoulders the responsibility of carrying the scene on which the entire movie hinges – the confession – and acquits herself brilliantly, turning her character's extended monologue into one of the most uncomfortable moments in recent memory. She strips herself emotionally bare in what rates as the finest acting workout in her career – a personal apocalypse committed to celluloid.

Sky Premier, Saturday 28th, 10.00pm

A tribute to the Queen of Soul

For the fourth consecutive year, VH1 has brought together some of the top music artists for its Divas phenomenon, which this time turns the spotlight on Aretha Franklin. Taking place at New York's Legendary Radio City Music Hall on 10 April, VH1 Divas 2001: The One and Only Aretha Franklin will feature Janet Jackson, Mary J Blige and rising star Jill Scott. Franklin was 'spotted' when she was 18 by Columbia Records producer John Hammond, who hailed her as 'the best natural singer since Billie Holiday'. What followed is nothing short of amazing grace, as Aretha went on to define the golden age of soul. She's won virtually every award going, scored a dozen million-selling singles, 20 number one R&B hits, and a truckload of Grammys (17 in total). She was also the first black woman on the cover of Time magazine, the youngest recipient of the Kennedy Centre Honours, the first woman inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, and she has performed at four US presidential inaugurations. And let's not forget her cameo role in The Blues Brothers, a movie that introduced her to a younger audience, as did her duets with Annie Lennox and George Michael. Is it any wonder that her home state of Michigan has declared her voice a natural resource? But this isn't about accolades: this is about soul, and Franklin's got plenty of it, plus a vocal range of five octaves (twice the normal range). Fusing gospel, jazz, blues, soul, rock and pop is a Franklin speciality, as is the ability to make a cover version her own, for example Otis Redding's Respect. Fifty albums later, the 59-year-old queen of soul still reigns supreme.

VH1, Saturday 21st, 6.00pm

Magpies at the mercy of the Black Cats

Passions are sure to run high this weekend in what will be a hotly contested derby between arch north east rivals Sunderland and Newcastle at the Stadium of Light. Since their move to the top flight the season before last, Peter Reid's Sunderland have established themselves as a strong Premiership side; the players proved as much when they inflicted a 2-1 defeat on Newcastle at St James' Park in November, with Don Hutchison and Niall Quinn (pictured, putting pressure on Aston Villa's Gareth Southgate) netting a goal each for the Black Cats to cancel out Gary Speed's fourth-minute opener for the home side. Magpies manager Bobby Robson will be hoping to improve upon his side's poor away form for the return fixture.

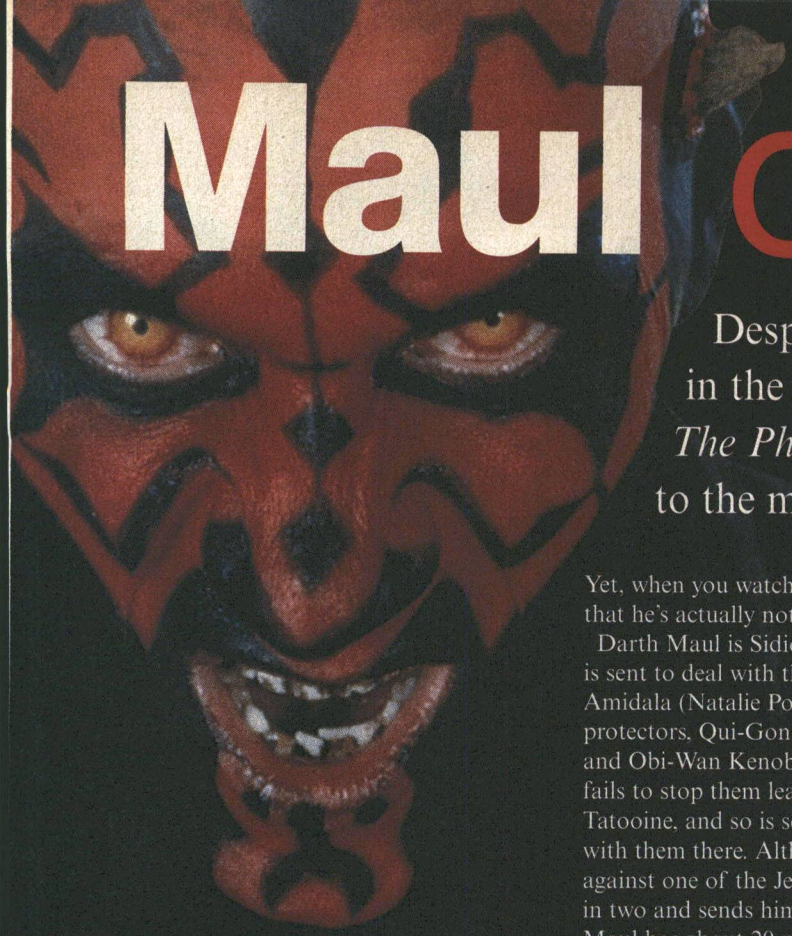
Maul of fame



Despite having only a brief appearance in the film, Darth Maul was the face of The Phantom Menace. Thomas Simpson spoke to the man behind the make-up, Ray Park

CAST your mind back two years to the start of the hype about Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace, George Lucas's long-awaited return to the galaxy far, far away. Whose image was used most in all the advertising campaigns? It wasn't young Anakin Skywalker, who would grow up and become Darth Vader. It wasn't heart-throb Ewan MacGregor, whose Obi-Wan Kenobi is one of the central figures of the film. It wasn't even the Phantom Menace himself – Darth Sidious – who is only seen as a hologram throughout the movie.

No, it was Darth Maul, who could be found on advertising hoardings, in fast food outlets, and on the covers of books and magazines week in and week out.

Yet, when you watch the film, you realize that he's actually not in it very much!

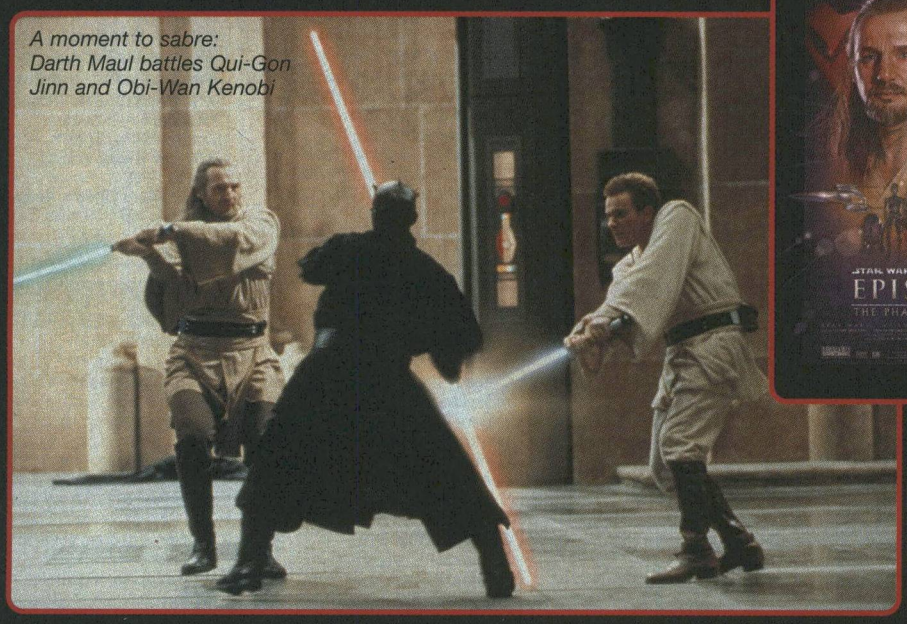
Darth Maul is Sidious's apprentice and is sent to deal with the fleeing Queen Amidala (Natalie Portman) and her Jedi protectors, Qui-Gon Jinn (Liam Neeson) and Obi-Wan Kenobi (McGregor). He fails to stop them leaving the planet Tatooine, and so is sent to Naboo to deal with them there. Although victorious against one of the Jedi, the other cuts him in two and sends him to his death. In all, Maul has about 20 minutes of screen time and only five lines of dialogue.

This doesn't, however, make him any less fearsome – his red and black tattoos and horned head trigger the frightened response to demons that has been part of mankind's culture for countless centuries. Instinctively we cower from him – and when we see that he has a double-ended lightsaber, against the ordinary lightsabers that the Jedi carry, we know that our heroes are in for a tough time. Added to that, the title 'Darth' has only previously been used for one person – Vader – who is one of the most memorable villains (at least originally) in cinema history, and the stage is set for an epic battle. Maul's menace is intensified by the fact that he clearly is a human actor, and in a film populated with lots of computer-generated creatures, it is refreshing to see a fight scene between two men.

Darth Maul is played by stuntman Ray Park, who also wreaked horror as the Headless Horseman in Sleepy Hollow, and the Toad in last summer's blockbuster X-Men. His natural athleticism and training in the Wu Shu martial arts added a grace to Maul's viciousness (Park uses a spin manoeuvre as his trademark fight move), giving the fight scenes a dance-like quality that is increasingly common in action films.

Park loved working on the movie. 'The whole experience was so cool,' he recalls. 'There wasn't one day I didn't want to do it. I would jump out of bed, ready to do it every day. Even on my days off, I would hang about on the set. I had to be there!' The final epic fight scene took four weeks to shoot. 'It was all a challenge,' he adds, 'but as I enjoyed it, I found it fun. You do the best you can do.'

Maul's popularity continued after the film aired, partly increased by the fact that at one point there were two versions of the film in circulation. One of these indicated that Darth Maul had not been sliced in two, and in fact was simply falling down a deep dark hole – and we know from other episodes in the Star Wars saga that falling down large holes doesn't necessarily mean you're dead. Unfortunately for his fans, Lucasfilm removed the offending prints, and the final video release shows Maul's death in all its gory, dramatic glory – a fitting end for an incarnation of evil.



A moment to sabre: Darth Maul battles Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi

LIVE FORD SCOTTISH FOOTBALL: RANGERS V CELTIC SKY SPORTS 1 12NOON

What a difference a year makes. As the 2000/01season thunders to a close, Celtic, after last season's miserable showing – when they finished 21 points behind title-winners Rangers – are waiting to be crowned Scottish Premier League champions. A key figure in the Bhoys' success has been Henrik Larsson (left in picture with Rangers' Scott Wilson). In the corresponding fixture at Ibrox last November, the Swedish star found the net, but his team still lost 5-1.

The above examples all gathered by our reporters and readers during 2000.

Every month readers of Government Auction News receive details of over 1,000 hard-to-find auctions. Many of these are 'no reserve' auctions where the goods must be sold regardless of how low the winning bid. If you want to learn where to find thousands of bargains every bit as good as these examples then send for a RISK-FREE TRIAL ISSUE of Government Auction News today, and save £20.

Why auction prices are so low.

People sell at auction when they are in a hurry. Perhaps they don't want to store the goods any more, or maybe they need the money urgently, or possibly they haven't the facilities to deal with prospective buyers. Whatever the reason, the result is that auction prices represent some unbelievable bargains.

The BIG secret.

Auctions of the type covered by Government Auction News don't get publicised because a) the auctioneers don't make enough profit to make it worth their while and b) most bidders are 'trade' and they don't want extra competition. The one proven way to discover where these auctions are is to read Government Auction News.

Types of auction covered.

Police lost property - Ministry of Defence - Official Liquidator & Receiver - Bankrupt stock - General & Trade - HM Customs & Excise - Antique & Collectibles - Wine - Jewellery - Motor - Property - Executor sales of deceased estates - and more besides. We also cover internet auctions.

Send for a RISK-FREE TRIAL ISSUE

We'll be pleased to send you a trial issue of Government Auction News which is packed not just with auction listings but also features, news, tips, articles, advice and investigative reports. Take up our offer and you'll save £20 in your first year. You will be covered by our 30 day no-quibble money-back guarantee.

Do not confuse us with other titles - there is only one Government Auction News as featured by The Sunday Times, The Independent, BBC Radio, and many more.

His sudden-death victory was all the more surprising as he had dumped his approach shot into the water. This year, the $3.4 million purse will again be attracting some top competition for the 29-year-old from Melbourne, all in pursuit of the first prize of $612,000.

AMERICAN PIE
Sky Premier 9.45pm
This teen comedy follows four friends desperate to lose their virginity before the school year ends. It was a huge hit, most notably for its warm apple pie scene, which really needs to be seen rather than explained. Mindless, yes, but there are a few laughs to be had.

GENERAL

TOUGHMAN II
Sky One 11.30pm
The Toughman Heavyweight title is up for grabs in this final, the culmination of the series in which ordinary American 'tough guys' are challenged to get into the ring and slug it out in three intense, one-minute rounds. It's all just sooo macho.

LIVE INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL: REPUBLIC OF IRELAND V ANDORRA
SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM

The Republic of Ireland take on Andorra in the next round of qualifying games for the 2002 World Cup finals. Group Two is a tricky one to contend with, but the Irish are making good progress. Mick McCarthy's men achieved a 1-1 away draw with Portugal last October, while they were unlucky to have to share the points with Holland a month earlier in Amsterdam. The Dutch had looked beaten thanks to goals from Robbie Keane (right in picture) and Jason McAteer, but the home team hit back late to clinch a draw.

LIVE EURO TOUR GOLF: ALGARVE PORTUGUESE OPEN SKY SPORTS 1 2.00PM

Scotland's Gary Orr (pictured) changed in the 2000 season from being just another journeyman into an international force. His long stretch of runners-up places was broken not once, but twice. The Algarve Portuguese Open was the first and, from there, Orr went on to win the British Masters in August, scoring a course record of 62 on the way. The 33-year-old launches the defence of his Portuguese title today at Quinta do Lago, in the Algarve, as the Tour comes to the end of its Mediterranean sweep.

LIVE SATURDAY FIGHT NIGHT: JOE CALZAGHE V MARIO VEIT SKY SPORTS 1 8.00PM

Welshman Joe Calzaghe (left in picture, in action against Richie Woodhall) makes the eighth defence of his WBO super-middleweight title when he enters the ring against number one challenger Mario Veit from Germany. The contest, at Cardiff's National Ice Rink, looks set to be a challenging one for both boxers, who have each fought 30 fights and never lost. But home crowd support could sway it for the 29-year-old from Newbridge, who will be looking forward to fighting in front of his home fans for the first time in almost two years.

PICNIC AT HANGING ROCK
The Studio 11.00pm
Before Peter (The Truman Show) Weir hit Hollywood, he directed some quirkier films, like this 1975 Australian movie. It's the haunting tale of three girls and their schoolteacher who go missing while on an excursion. The fact that it was supposedly a true story adds to the film's eeriness.

all Talk... no hands

Linguaphone audio only language course

Linguaphone are proud to announce the launch of all Talk, the revolutionary new French and Spanish courses that have made classrooms, text-books and grammar tables a thing of the past.

With the backing of the Academic Advisory Committee, top linguistic experts have used the latest techniques to develop unique audio-only French and Spanish courses which are easy, entertaining and can be used anywhere.

Based on natural learning techniques, all Talk French and Spanish can provide you with an active working vocabulary of nearly 2,000 words - roughly equivalent to A Level+ conversational standard.

Through an engaging soap-style storyline, you'll follow the experiences of a British businessman through real-life situations on his first visit to France or Spain. You'll gain a good understanding of French or Spanish social and business culture - and the entertaining plot will keep you keen to find out what happens next!

all Talk is perfect for busy people with active lives because it can be used anywhere - train, car, gym - even by the pool! Now you don't have to find time to learn French or Spanish - just make use of the time you already have.

The course is split into two Levels, each including 8 CDs or Cassettes packed in a stylish carrier. With over 18 hours worth of recorded dialogue, Level 1 is perfect if you're a beginner or if your French or Spanish is a bit rusty, whilst Level 2 starts with the story so far and is ideal for people who already have a good grasp of the basics. And it's amazing value at just £49.90 + p&p for Level 1 or 2. What's more, if you buy both Levels together you can save £9.90!

all Talk is unique - nobody else offers a course that provides anything near this level of language or entertainment without books, reading or writing. This is an easy, cost-effective and enjoyable way to learn French or Spanish - you really will love it - or your money back!*

To order, simply complete the coupon and post it today. You can also fax or email your order (please include a daytime telephone number), visit our website or call our credit card ordering service. All orders will be delivered within 7 days from receipt.

*If you're not happy with your course, please return it in its original condition within 21 days for a full refund of the purchase price.

TENCHI-TASTIC!

I AM AN extremely big fan of Tenchi Muyo and, up until now, I've had to download difficult streams online to see it at all! Apart from the cutting that Cartoon Network had to do, because the Japanese have little or no shame, I think it's fantabulous!

Frank, e-mail

NO PLACE FOR MELROSE FANS

WHAT is happening to Melrose Place? It was only on five times in March. This is from a whole group of Melrose fans!

Christine Briggs, e-mail

● A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Melrose Place came to the end of its current run on 8 March and there are currently no plans for it to come back into the schedule.'

BOTTOMS UP

IS UK GOLD ever going to have an all Bottom night again? I missed the last Bottom night, which was shown on New Year's Eve.

Elaine, e-mail

● The last* Bottom night seemed to be popular, Elaine, and you'll be pleased to know that UK Gold informs us another night of Bottom *is currently being considered.

FILED UNDER MISSING

AS A BIG sci-fi fan, I was pleased to see that the new series of The X-Files was starting on 18 February. How annoyed I was to learn that the series premiere was on 15 February, as a result of which I missed it. I also heard that Earth: Final Conflict has moved to a Saturday slot – but, once again, no mention of this was made in Cable Guide. What's going on?

Kev Reed, e-mail

● A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Unavoidably, the schedule does sometimes change after the publication of the monthly magazines, but Sky One makes every effort to inform viewers of the current schedule via regular on-air promotions. The* X-Files can currently be seen every Thursday at 9.00pm and Earth: Final Conflict *plays every Saturday at 6.00pm.'

Anime action: Tenchi (centre) and friends have caught your imagination in Tenchi Muyo

There's a £50 prize for the star letter!

SEEING RED

I SAW in March's Cable Guide that UK Gold is no longer showing Red Dwarf. Why? Especially since UK Gold stopped showing it a third of the way through series three.

Thomas Eacott, e-mail

● UK Gold informs us that double episodes of* Red Dwarf *will be returning on Monday nights this month, starting from where the series left off in February.

EXTRA TIME FOR GENTLEMEN?

I HAVE just finished watching the series Time Gentlemen Please on Sky One. All my mates talk about it and we are wondering if there will be a second series.

Ian Goodrich, Essex

● Sky One tells us that things are looking hopeful for a second series of Al Murray's* Time Gentlemen Please.

AS XENA ON TV

DOES Sky One have the rights to the sixth season of Xena: Warrior Princess, and when will it be shown?

Joanna Felling, e-mail

● Sky One informs us that the new series of* Xena *will be shown later this year.

CAN'T RESIST TEMPTATION

I HAVE just subscribed to Cable and one of the first programmes I saw was Temptation Island [Sky One]. It's just low-down, dirty, gutter trash – I love it and can't wait until the next show. Great entertainment!

Sonia Smith, Leicester

● Sky One tells us another series of* Temptation Island *is being considered.

HOPE FLOATS

WHEN will the new series of both Chicago Hope and Brooklyn South be showing on Sky One?

Melanie William, e-mail

● Sky One informs us there are currently no plans to show* Brooklyn South, but Chicago Hope *may be coming back in May.

IT'S A CRACKER

CONGRATULATIONS on the magazine – easy to read and very informative! I'd like to know, when will UK Gold be showing the second season of Cracker?

Nikkie Webb, e-mail

● UK Gold tells us series two of* Cracker *will be shown later this year.

HOOKED ON FELICITY

I STUMBLED onto Felicity on ITV2 and I have become hooked! All the actors [Keri Russell, who plays Felicity, is pictured below] are great, as well as good looking! The story-lines are good, too. But have I missed much? And is the channel going to show the next series?

Tracy, e-mail

● An ITV2 spokesperson responds: 'We're extremely pleased to have brought Felicity to UK viewers. Series three is currently being filmed and will be coming to ITV2 in May. For all those who've missed the start of the series, ITV2 is running it again on Saturdays at 7.00pm.'

★ HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN

I PRESUME Heather Jones (March Viewers' Views), who wonders why Happy Days is shown on Sky One – because, wow, it's 20 years old – is only young herself. I am 34 years old and, like many others, grew up watching shows now regarded as classics, such as MASH, Starsky and Hutch, Dallas and, yes, Happy Days. Perhaps in 2020-2030 Futurama (Heather's favourite programme) will be repeated, and Heather will enjoy watching it again!

Alison Elvidge, e-mail

● Congratulations, Alison, you've won £50!

SECOND CLASS MALE

PHILIP CASNOFF was brilliant in Little Girls in Pretty Boxes, but in Strong Medicine [Living] we hardly ever see him, though he's listed as one of the leading actors. This show is too female orientated. Where are all the males?

Barbara Dunn, Birmingham

LESS TALK, MORE ACTION!

WHAT has happened to British Eurosport's Eurogoals on Monday evenings? This was one of my favourite events of the week – 90 minutes of virtual non-stop action. Unfortunately, for the past two weeks it has featured more studio talk than football, and this has ruined the show. We want action, not words. Come on, British Eurosport, bring back the old format!

Duncan Summers, Brighton

● Colin Banks, PR Manager at British Eurosport, replies: 'Fear not. The old version of* Eurogoals, with non-stop footballing action, is still shown every Monday evening, at 5.30pm. However, we have now introduced the new British Eurogoals *which is shown later in the evening. This is presented by Cris St Valery, who leads viewers through the best of the week's action from Europe with expert analysis from both former players and football journalists. Therefore, football fans can have the best of both worlds.'
